CHICAGO, July 25.—(By the Associated Press) En route to the Pacific coast to join President Harding, United States Attorney General Harry M. Daugherty plans to appear personally in criminal actions against San Francisco building material dealers and trade associations charged with conspiracy to boycott union labor by refusing to furnish materials to contractors employing organized workers. Conferences with interested organization leaders over the Southern Pacific Central Pacific separation decision of the federal circuit court also will occupy a large part of Mr. Daugherty's time in California.

The attorney-general declined to reveal the names of those against whom

BUILDING INSPECTOR WILL RECOMMEND DESTRUCTION OF OLD DURKEE HOUSE

THE OLD DURKEE HOUSE

The Old Durkee House, thought to be the oldest dwelling in this part of Middlesex county and situated on Lowell water works land in Old Ferry road, is doomed. It has passed beyond the point of possible repair and Building Inspector Francis A. Connor will recommend its destruction.

Inspector Connor made a thorough examination of the old house yesterday and considerable plaster was stripped away to ascertain its exact structural condition. He found it in a dangerous state, with repairs impossible. This sounds its death knell.

A month or so ago Councilor Frank K. Stearns interested his council colleagues with an entertaining history of the old Durkee house, leading up to a motion of resolution asking for an inspection of the property and the submission of estimates of the cost of repair. It was his belief that the house stands as a monument of other days.

When Lowell was unthought of, and had so much of historic value that it developed as an obligation upon the city to repair and perpetuate it. The matter was referred to the city engineering department and the inspector of public buildings.

Inspector Connor's inspection followed as a matter of routine and his decision was made public today.

JESS SWEETSER WINS FROM MARTIN

CLEVELAND, Ohio, July 25.—(By the Associated Press)—In the first match of the first round of match play in the western golf championship today Jess Sweetser of New York, medalist, handily defeated Leonard Martin, a youthful Gothamite, 5 and 1 in 18 holes. The national champion was like a machine on the first nine, accumulating nine fours for a 36, while Martin was erratic, taking 11. Sweetser let up on the other five holes, but Martin could not tighten his game.

WILL ERECT MEMORIAL SHAFT TO PERPETUATE MEMORY OF WORLD WAR HEROES

A beautiful memorial in honor of the young men of the upper Lawrence street district who either were killed or died in World War service will be erected in the square just above the U. S. Cartridge Co. plant, formed by the intersection of Agawam, Lawrence, South Whipple and Andrews streets. It is hoped to have the memorial shaft ready for dedication some time in August, or at the latest, early in September.

Residents of that city district, familiarly known as The Grove, are now engaged in a campaign for necessary funds for the purchase of the memorial and an active committee, has enlisted general and generous support throughout the neighborhood. Meetings of the steering committee are being held regularly and many of the district's citizens—men and women alike—are giving freely of their time and money in the interests of the project.

It is the aim of the sponsors of the idea to make the memorial typical of the spirit of self sacrifice which prompted this country's entrance into the world conflict and which cost so heavily in human lives. The neighborhood in question gave freely of its best material, many of whom never returned and never effort will be made to make the memorial a lasting testament of the love and affection which marks the memories of their glorious achievements.

DEPARTMENT HEADS CONFER WITH MAYOR

Chief Edward F. Saunders of the fire department, Superintendent of Police Thomas R. Atkinson and Joseph H. Gormley, superintendent of charities, were called into conference with Mayor John J. Donovan today for the purpose of discussing their individual departmental appropriations, giving consideration to expenditures for the first six months and money available for the balance of the year.

Each of these three departments has operated well within its original appropriation and the conference simply were for the purpose of general discussion.

The finances of the state aid department also will be discussed in a similar manner when Supt. William A. Arnold returns from his vacation.

This new building marks another step toward the reconstruction of that territory long a center of the city from the main retail district, but which has been slow to develop and become a part of the city's business district.

It amounts to $45,849.14 and is approximately $200 greater than last week, which up to that time was the largest. Five Couples Celebrate Their Golden Wedding Anniversaries

(By NEA Service)
OMAHA, Neb., July 25.—The quaint old First Presbyterian church of this city not only starts many couples on their marital careers but it "keeps them happy ever after."

With a membership of but 243, it already includes five couples celebrating golden wedding anniversaries. And in this era of divorce, that's something to remark about.

Other Omaha congregations have more pretentious houses than this old building at 224 and Emmett streets, but so long as the latter can challenge all comers in its record for domestic tranquility, it will stand alone.

Religious First
And according to the pastor, Rev. J. Clyde Mahaffey, the church itself can claim, and rightfully, most of the credit of the long and serene matrimonial voyages of its fifth anniversary members.

"In the lives of every couple, religion has come first," he says. "I firmly believe that same and steady living strict observance of the Sabbath—in short, just old-fashioned "goodness"—counts for longevity."

At any rate, here is the proud and concrete examples of the good influence of the little church:

A Long List

Rev. and Mrs. J. B. Jackson, 75 and 77 respectively, celebrated their golden wedding just last month.

Mr. and Mrs. James Anderson, 75 and 77, passed their fiftieth milestone together July 16.

Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Cowgill, 75 and 77, celebrated in September.

Mr. and Mrs. T. C. Wallace, 73 and 75, were wedded half a century on Nov. 26 last.

And finally, the golden wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. W. G. Richey was so recently celebrated, having occurred in February, 1920.

Mr. and Mrs. Cowgill's only daughter, Leah, married Mr. and Mrs. Anderson's son. This has resulted only in closer harmony between the old companions.

Two missionaries, one preacher and two pastors' wives are numbered in the ranks of the children of that inner circle.

Hawker and peddler licenses were granted to Leo Clelland of 601 Merrimack street, Adam Zano of 15 July street and James E. Murphy of 227 Walker street. STANDARD OIL BLAMED FOR CARIBOU FIRE

RANDOLPH, Me., July 25.—In a ruling received from the United States circuit court it is held that static electricity may develop to a dangerous extent in the filling of a gasoline tank truck from a storage tank if the truck is not properly grounded by a safety chain.

The ruling overrules the exceptions and the verdict stands in the suits of R. L. Pitcher and the Briggs Hardware company of Caribou, which were awarded damages of $17,085 and $6001, respectively, against the Standard Oil company for the destruction of storehouse and goods burned in a fire which originated by an explosion at the tank station of the oil company adjacent to the Pitcher & Briggs property near the Caribou railroad station.

The ruling calls attention to the evidence which showed that the defendant corporation was aware of the danger of static electricity and drivers of tanks were provided with chains to form ground connection and carry off the electricity and ordered to use them, but on this occasion the driver of the tank truck found that the chain was broken, and not being able to use it, started to fill the tank truck with no chain.

Daugherty to Fight Boycott Against Union Labor

court action might be taken in San Francisco when he announced his plans before leaving here last night. He said he had once advised child labor association delegates from San Francisco that "a boycott against the labor as an industry is a boycott against industry" and he now stood ready to test that position in the courts.

"The right of the worker to organize into trade unions for lawful purposes is as fundamental in America as the right to vote and as well supported in law," the attorney-general said. "Any attempt to infringe on that right is illegal."

Indicted in Federal Courts
SAN FRANCISCO, July 25.—Two industrial associations and 10 firms and individuals were indicted in federal court here recently for violation of the Sherman anti-trust law. They were specifically charged with refusing to sell building material to contractors unless at least 50 per cent of their employees were non-union.

The cases have been set for trial Sept. 12.
It was charged that the fight was first inaugurated by the building material men in an attempt to establish the American plan in the building industry here. The government charged that such an attempt was an effort to restrict trade and commerce. The government, in its complaint, asked that the associations be dissolved and that the firms and individuals be convicted of violating the Sherman anti-trust law.

Several weeks ago the persons now under indictment were tried in the state courts for violation of the first strike law, patterned after the Sherman anti-trust act. At that trial the defendants were acquitted.

Gunmen Who Fought Pistol Battle in Toronto and Fled With $30,000 Still at Large

TORONTO, Ont., July 25.—The provincial police, scouring Ontario for the six bandits who yesterday fought a pistol battle with a dozen bank messengers in Toronto's financial district and escaped with $30,000 after wounding three employees, today received word that the ashes of a founding car, believed to be that in which the robbers fled, were still smoldering on the Garrison road between Buffalo and Fort Erie, Ont. SHEA FORBIDDEN TO WALTON FOR SENATOR PILOT AIRPLANE

BOSTON, July 25.—John Shea of Cambridge today was forbidden to pilot an airplane and Edward O'Connell of Winthrop was forbidden to register or use a plane in Massachusetts, by F. A. Goodwin, registrar of motor vehicles. This action, the registrar stated, is the result of an accident in which an unregistered plane, owned by O'Connell and piloted without a license by Shea, struck the mast of a sailboat in making a landing at Point Shirley.

The registrar drew attention to the law which requires the registration of all planes after they have been used upon by an advisory board of five aeronautical experts. In two recent fatal accidents, which in one case resulted in the death of two persons, Registrar Goodwin stated, the planes had not been registered.

COMPLETE DIPLOMATIC VICTORY FOR TURKEY

LONDON, July 25.—(By the Associated Press) The outstanding note of all comment in today's newspapers on the signing of the near east peace treaty at Lausanne yesterday is a frank admission of Turkey's complete diplomatic victory over the allies. The most noteworthy, is recorded by some commentators as a good omen.

The Times says: "The part played by the central American observer was most unexceptionable, but when through the mouth of its diplomatic representative a government claims to intervene between a foreign government and a British company that representative's task becomes not only ungrateful but unenviable."

Oklahoma Governor Will Be Candidate for Democratic Nomination

Cast Aside Farmer-Labor League—Moves to Oust Wilson as College Head

OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla., July 25.—Gov. Walton's announcement that he will be a candidate for the democratic nomination for United States senator next year is awaited as the next move in the kaleidoscopic events which have wrought a complete transformation in Oklahoma politics within the last few days.

Doing an "about face," the executive has cast aside the farmer-labor reconstruction league, the organization that nominated and elected him on the democratic ticket last year. He also has moved his household to Muskogee in the east side of the state where a local residence would be required by precedent in making the senatorial race in 1924.

He is surrounded by political rivals.

Plan to Have Them Placed on Permanent Compensation Basis Urged

WASHINGTON, July 25.—A brief advocating the placing of disabled former service men on a permanent compensation basis and abandonment of the present system of examinations every 30 days was filed today with Director Lines of the veterans bureau by the Disabled American Veterans of the World War. The organization estimated that 150,000 men would be affected by such a change and that much of the present unrest existing among disabled veterans would be removed by eliminating the uncertainty and annoyance caused by frequent physical examinations.

Jaywalking Safe? Seems So, Argues Expert, Suggesting Way Out

Most accidents to pedestrians occur at the crossings, and it is in educating the public against jaywalking that the expert suggests a way out.

This is the tenor of the argument for safer crossings in crowded sections of cities, presented by Ewart Williams Hobbs in the National Safety News for July. At the same time Hobbs presents a possible solution to this important phase of the traffic problem.

It isn't fair, he says, to urge the pedestrian to cross only at intersections while these are the most hazardous spots. "If we wish to keep him off that portion of the highway, we must make the intersections attractive to him."

We are not doing this, Hobbs maintains. We have traffic officers at crossings, who, temporarily block traffic, making it in ways like a many-colored traffic light, on a still summer's day.

THE ROTARY SYSTEM OF TRAFFIC

bumpers or mushrooms, which can easily be straddled by reckless drivers. And there are bumper policemen and all sorts of stanchions to guide motor traffic.

But they do not prevent accidents to pedestrians. Neither does moral suasion, or any sort of education, declares Hobbs.

Physical Prevention

"The general principle to be observed in the prevention of the pedestrian from crossing the street is to make the crossing as safe as possible. We will readily accept the fact that street crossings are equipped with honest-to-goodness physical safety appliances. And we ought not to be afraid to experiment with a better."

According to Hobbs, an efficient system for controlling traffic, Hobbs considers two methods. One is what he called the rotary system, by which the traffic swings about a central point or circular path. "It enters the procession and leaves it, and does not cross immediately," he explains.

But there is a serious objection to this plan.

"The traffic keeps moving, which is good for the traffic, but not so good for the pedestrian. The rotary system also requires elbow room, which can be spared in a big business section."

The other plan for traffic control and greater safety, is the erection of barriers in the middle of a street at the four points of the crossroads. But these barriers must be of sufficient width to insure stability, height to prevent straddling and lowness to prevent concealment of small objects such as children."

Narrow Streets

Also, shaped long and rather high, their contour prevents a direct and destructive crash. And, most important, they give a less confusing line of traffic and afford safety to pedestrians half-way across the street. Such barriers would practically divide a wide road into two narrow streets. And the narrow street, argues Hobbs, is the safest.

"As experienced traffic officers will tell you that, generally speaking, fewer accidents occur on narrow streets than on broad ones. The reason is that automobile traffic is flexible. An automobile can circle around a street car, cut across, move in and out, perform all sorts of exciting contortions on a wide street."

"Where there isn't room for it to perform you have some idea where it is going, and can keep out of its way. You know where its way is going to be. There is some certainty about the direction."

CHEAPER FUEL OIL

French engineers have been experimenting with a gas oil for automobile engines, which they say has proved more efficient than gasoline. Besides, the gas oil is cheaper.

WILL HOLD SUPPER AND PUBLIC MEETING

At a meeting of a committee consisting of representatives of the Lowell Ministers' union and the Men's clubs connected with several of the local churches it was decided to hold a supper and public meeting in the fall at which a speaker of national-wide reputation will give an address upon the problem of world peace.

Rev. J. F. Speck, president of the Ministers' union, was chairman of the meeting and John A. Lamberton was elected secretary. The discussion lasted for quite a while in regard to when the speaker should be held and when the meeting should be held and it was finally decided to elect a committee to take charge of the event and also decided to hold the meeting in the early part of October. The committee consists of Judge Frederic A. Fisher, Howard L. Smith, president of the Grace Universalist church men's club, and John A. Lamberton.

The next meeting of the committee will be held on Sept. 19 and it is expected at that time that final arrangements for the affair will be completed.

MORE RESIGNATIONS IN THE PHILIPPINES

MANILA, July 25.—(By the Associated Press)—The chaotic political situation here, marked recently by the resignations of all the principal native officials of the Philippine government and by a legislative request that Governor General Leonard Wood be recalled, is in a more muddled state after the resignation last night of six appointive representatives and senators of the legislature.

The latest group to quit as a result of differences between Governor General Wood and Filipino officials, explained that they wished to give the governor an opportunity to fill the positions with legislators who would not embarrass him.

Friends of Wood, however, contend that the governor's enemies, notably Manuel Quezon, head of the new nationalist party, are bent on ousting all of Wood's appointees in an effort to make it appear that the people approved the resignation of the entire membership of the cabinet and council of state on July 17.

In the recall resolution adopted by the legislature, Monday night, it was asked that unless immediate independence was granted the Philippine Islands a Filipino governor-general be appointed to replace Wood.

He has promised to set forth the attitude which, in his humble opinion, we should adopt towards Europe.

FORMER HOME OF MARK TWAIN BURNED

WEDDING, Conn., July 25.—Storm-flood—the home of Samuel L. Clemens (Mark Twain) in the closing years of his life—a picturesque villa on a ridge in this town, was burned early today. It was unoccupied for many years after the Clemens' death and was bought last December by Mrs. Margaret E. Givens of New York as a summer home.

The home was built to carry out the ideas and wishes of Mr. Clemens, and with the other buildings comprised a country estate.

Mrs. Givens, her daughter Thelma and her son, Edward, were in the house when the latter discovered the fire in the laundry on the main floor. All were obliged to leave in their night garments. Practically nothing in the house was saved. The fire is thought to have started from spontaneous combustion among painting materials which were in the laundry.

SANS TO BE EXAMINED U. S. INVESTIGATORS TO VISIT RUSSIA

Alleged Author of Threatening Letters to Mabel Normand and Mack Sennett

MARTINEZ, Cal., July 25.—Albert Sana, alleged author of threatening letters to Mabel Normand, film actress, and to Mack Sennett, motion picture producer, was held today pending a hearing to determine his mental condition. Police declare he apparently is obsessed by a hallucination that he is responsible for the death of William Desmond Taylor, screen director, slain in Los Angeles in 1921.

The mission to Mrs. Normand was loosely written, but the text of some indicated that Sana retained an idea that he was engaged to wed the actress.

In spite of the similarity between the name of Sana and that of Edward Sandoz, valet, who was sought in connection with the killing of Taylor, authorities scouted the theory that the man was related.

For more than a year Sana has worked as a section hand on the Southern Pacific company. In his rooms, police said, were found many unaddressed letters addressed to Miss Normand and Sennett.

LOST BREATH, HEART FLUTTERED after least exertion

Weak, Nervous Woman Obtains New Health

"Some months ago, I found that after the slightest exertion I suffered from shortness of breath and fluttering of the heart. Frequently I would get a stabbing pain in my left side. I tried various remedies but instead of improving I became worse. My appetite failed and soon even the sight of food became repulsive. Then my nerves became so weak that I would 'jump' at any sudden sound."

One day a friend called and, seeing my exhausted condition, told me that what I needed was Wincarnis. I began taking it right away and in all I have taken four bottles and I am amazed at the wonderful result. Today I am strong and well and I owe all my renewed health to Wincarnis."

BERLIN, July 25. (By the Associated Press.)—United States Senators John D. Ladd of North Dakota and William H. King of Utah, and Representative James A. Frear of Wisconsin, who arrived here yesterday, plan to leave for Moscow Saturday, via Warsaw.

Senator King said that he and his fellow travelers would investigate the economic situation in Russia and would also look into religious and political questions for their own enlightenment.

In the event that Russian affairs were discussed in the next congress, which all agreed was quite likely.

It is estimated that the trip will require about a month. The investigators plan to spend a week in the USSR.

THREE SMALL FIRES LAST EVENING

A alarm from box 33 at 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon called out the fire department to 10 Shafter street, where a small fire was in progress under the porch of the house at that number. The blaze was extinguished in short order and the damage was slight.

A small grass fire in Central street resulted in a still alarm at the last night and this was extinguished before any damage was done.

An alarm at 10 o'clock last night called the apparatus to 34 South Whipple street where a burning candle had set fire to rugs saturated with turpentine and benzene. The fire was extinguished before any damage had been done to the house.

AMUSEMENT NOTES

THE STRAND

The name, Richard Barthelmess, is synonymous to good pictures, so that it is not unusual to expect that the coming three days' engagement at the Strand, beginning at 8 o'clock, of the big First National production, "Fure," with Richard Barthelmess and Dorothy Fisk in the starring roles, will prove highly with the patrons.

It should be noted that advance information on this exceptional photoplay, based on the judgment of those who are in a position to pass on the merits of such pictures, indicates that "Fure" is one of the best film offerings of its kind shown on any screen. It is a dramatic creation based on one of the recent popular sea stories, and has attracted widespread attention all over the country. The screen version is many degrees more enjoyable than the book story. Barthelmess will be favorably remembered for his varied and successful characterizations of the past, and in "Fure" he is said to surpass all former efforts. As the young, returning seaman who falls in love with a girl to whom his father objects, he is most interesting, and when he starts to assert his manhood, and finally triumphs, only after considerable adventure and overcoming countless obstacles, he is truly enjoyable. Dorothy Fisk was always interesting and charmingly entertaining, and in her treatment of the part she is seen in one of her best parts. The locale of the story is on the broad Atlantic, and most of the scenes were taken on shipboard. A competent cast assists the stars in interpreting the story, while the photography and scenic creations are all praiseworthy.

The second feature of the week, and bill, is produced by various studios, and is a comedy drama that affords a full measure of entertainment with Alice Walton in the role of a Polish girl, who comes back home to her village, where she creates considerable of a stir in her community. She is a lively, mischievous, and a young woman that she was in her past, screen romances. Don't miss seeing the whole bill, which includes a comedy and a variety, as well as excellent musical numbers.

Today offers the last chance of seeing the great story of the North Atlantic, "The Town of Dread," and the extraordinary Marshall Nolan comedy drama, "Mind."

Picture shows are again crowded at the Strand, but when it comes to comfort while watching a photoplay program, there is the Strand, with its good and comfortable surroundings. Try it once and be sure that what is said is true.

THEATRE

The story of "Outlaws of the Sea" the new picture which opens at the Regals Thursday is a clever one and up-to-the-minute in popular interest. It deals with bootlegging as it is carried on between the Florida coast and an island on the Bahamas, and concerns the trick of the bootlegger in concealing his activities with the innocent aid of a simple old man, a retired sea captain, and his pretty daughter.

Chief of these bootleggers is Leonard Crozier, an unscrupulous fellow. He rents his river home to Captain Abel Grimsbow and the latter's daughter, whose occupancy of the house will divert suspicion from the owner. The old man is soon persuaded to pilot Crozier's boat, secretly laden with liquor, on his many trips.

This is the basis of the story from which survives develop with a like melodramatic climax topping them all. There are exciting moments when the girl dashes out to sea in a motor craft to warn her father of the danger awaiting him; there is a spirited chase by a revenue cutter in pursuit of these outlaws of the sea, and numerous scenes of daring on the high seas.

Marguerite Courtot, heroine of "Down to the Sea in Ships," has the leading role in "Outlaws of the Sea." In this type of role she is always at her best. She likes the part, as a daughter of the sea.

The companion attraction is "I Am the Woman," a stirring western drama starring the female "Red Hart" of the screen, Texas Guinan. Mrs. Guinan disproves the theory that the fair sex are timid. On the contrary, she is a two-timed-two-gun cowgirl and will make you sit up and take notice.

An extremely funny comedy entitled "The Artist" and a two-reel drama with Leo Maloney conclude a very satisfactory program.

MERRIMACK SQUARE

Final performances will be given this evening at the Merrimack Square Theatre of "Where the Pavement Ends," an excellent Rex Ingram Metro production with an all-star cast, headed by Alice Terry, and "An Old Sweetheart of Mine," a comedy-drama based on the famous poem by James Whitcomb Riley. There will be an entire change of program tomorrow afternoon.

Features for Thursday, Friday and Saturday will be "Singed Wings," a Paramount production of Spanish life with Bobe Daniels, Conrad Nagel and Robert Broder in the leading roles, and "A Gentleman of Leisure," starring Jack Holt in a comedy-drama of exceptional merit. It will be a typical Merrimack Square program, the best obtainable.

Celebrated in the screen world for the superiority of his cinema productions, George Fitzmaurice, Paramount producer of pictures he have, has given to the public another masterpiece in "Singed Wings," a fantastic drama featuring Bobe Daniels and Conrad Nagel. This is a type of motion picture that has not often been tried, but a type nevertheless, which lends itself splendidly to the treatment of the most unusual and developed of the screen, the photoplay by Paul Perry. "Singed Wings" is not only a powerful and unique photoplay, but it seems destined to establish for itself a niche in the cinema hall of fame, absolutely apart from any other picture.

RADIO CONCERT FOR LOWELL BOY SCOUTS

The Boy Scouts who are now enjoying camp life at Island pond are to be treated to an unusual radio concert in the near future, according to plans made by Scout Executive Edwin Melton. A talk will be given by James E. West, national executive of the Scouts, in New York city and will be relayed by telephone to Syracuse, N. Y., and from there broadcasted by the powerful radio station of the Western Electric Co. WWT. The subject of Mr. West's talk will be "Boy Scouts of Lowell, Mass., at Camp at Island Pond," and while it will be given mainly for the benefit of the scouts at camp, people all over the country may "listen-in."

In addition to the address, the WWT orchestra will sound trumpet calls and play several marches for the benefit of the boys at camp.

$1,500,000 DAMAGE CAUSED BY FLOODS

CASPER, Wyo., July 25.—With unofficial estimates of the damage placed at nearly $1,500,000, the region west and northwest of here, extending as far as Thermopolis, is struggling to get its head above the flood waters which deluged that section yesterday. The damage to the Burlington railroad between Arming-ton and Thermopolis, a stretch of 49 miles, is estimated at close to $750,000. Because wires are down, most of the way between Arming-ton, 35 miles northwest of here, and Thermopolis, it is difficult to ascertain the exact amount of damage. No loss of life is reported thus far.

Several bridges on the Northwestern railroad between here and Lander are reported swept away by high water. Two Northwestern trains are unharmed near Monda, a short distance west of here.

LOWELL ELKS HOLD SPECIAL MEETING

A special meeting of the Lowell lodge of Elks was held last night in their rooms on Middle street for the purpose of hearing a report by the building committee on the progress of their work. A lengthy report of the committee was read and it outlined all the work that has been done from the time of the committee's formation up to the present time. It was stated in this report that the original plans for a new building had to be changed because the most bid amounted to nearly $15,000 more than was originally planned to spend on the building and the committee had refused all bids and ordered new plans containing a great deal of ornamental and other work considered unnecessary and the omission of which will not affect either the stability or convenience of the building.

The committee will meet next Friday evening and the bids submitted under the new plans will be opened.

The building committee consists of the following: George M. Harrison, president; John P. Farley, secretary; John J. Healy, treasurer; Michael J. Markham, Frederick E. Meloy, John P. Meahan, Frederick Hammond, James Spillane, Irving D. Libby, James Kenney, John F. Monahan and Frank Malloy.

MEETING OF CITY EMPLOYEES' UNION

The regular meeting of the Municipal Employees union was held last night in Trades and Labor hall with President Daniel Moynihan in the chair. Routine business was transacted, 7 new members were initiated and 12 applications for membership received. The grievance committee was ordered to again wait on Mayor Donovan for a decision in regard to appeal for equal wages and hours for the men employed in the water department. It was also voted to invite the Federation of State, City and Town Employees to hold their annual convention in this city. Following the business meeting a social hour was enjoyed.

PRIEST'S CASE TO GO TO JURY TODAY

DENVER, Colo., July 25.—The case of Rev. Walter A. Grace, whose trial began in federal district court here yesterday, probably will go to the jury today, in the opinion of attorneys interested in the trial. The defendant, former pastor at Arcadia, a Denver suburb, is charged with felony in connection with applications for a permit to ship liquor in considerable quantities to the Miller home for the aged in this city.

Warning by Fuel Head

and cities of the state. Fear of a possible shortage, he said, was driving consumers to hoard coal and fear of loss of business was forcing dealers to bid against one another in the market. He added that this fear was used by unscrupulous elements in the coal trade to increase prices and to facilitate sales.

Only one-half of the supply of anthracite needed for next winter can be mined before September 1, Mr. Hultman stated, and advised the purchase of one-half anthracite and one-half low volatile bituminous coal by householders. Anthracite transportation has only been slightly affected and no car shortage now exists, he stated.

"There is no reason to fear that the people of the state will freeze to death next winter for lack of domestic fuel," he added.

Some Changes Recommended

accounts receivable are long overdue and the recommendation follows that the city solicitor should take some action toward their collection. "Also," says the audit report, "the assessors should determine if the balance of the 1919 excise tax outstanding at the present time was properly assessed and if it is uncollectable, the amount should be abated."

In regard to the record of receipts of the vocational school kitchen, the report states all cash on hand was verified, but adds that the receipts have not been paid to the treasurer, but have been expended by the director of the school course, which is contrary to certain general laws. It is recommended that the receipts be paid to the city treasurer hereafter and that expenditures be approved by the school department and auditor.

Some action should be taken toward the collection of old bills of the emergency commission, says the report, some of which are long overdue.

Of particular interest is the following paragraph taken from the report relative to sinking fund investments: "The sinking fund investments were examined and found the income verified, all of which was found to be properly recorded on the books. Although the par value of the securities in the sinking fund is in excess of the loan, the market value of some of these securities maturing subsequent to the maturity of the loan, is considerably less than their par value. It will be necessary, therefore, for the city to make an annual appropriation until the amount which can be realized on the securities is equal to the loan."

The report recommends that departmental officials should have called to their attention Chapter 253, Acts of 1922, which is an amendment to Chapter 44 of the General Laws and refers to the overhauling of appropriation accounts, or to the insuring of liabilities to be paid from the revenue of the following year and is as follows:

"Any city, town or district officer, who knowingly violates or authorizes or directs any official or employee to violate any provision of this chapter shall be punished by a fine of not more than $100 and the mayor, selectmen, auditor, committee, or commissioner, shall, and five tax payers may, report such violation to the district attorney who shall investigate and prosecute the same."

Continuing, the report takes up at some length the accumulation of food claims in the charity department relative to cases where aid had been rendered to persons having a settlement outside of Lowell, and for which no bills have been sent out.

"During the past few months, however," says the report, "the billing of a number of cases has been completed and reimbursement received by the city on these accounts. It was suggested that the billing of the remaining cases be completed to the end of the current year. This suggestion met with hearty response from the department superintendent and the entire office force is devoting as much time as possible to this work. It seems probable, therefore, that all the accounts will be billed by the end of 1923 and even if not all collected, will be reflected in the balance sheet as accounts receivable."

The report states that surety bonds furnished by departmental officials for the faithful performance of their duties were examined and found to be in proper form.

The summary of the report contains an expression of appreciation for the co-operation and courtesy extended by every departmental official of the city during the process of the audit and the appreciation of the chief examiner is extended on behalf of his assistants and himself.

Not a sign of any lessening in the popularity of printed silks and cottons—brilliant cretonnes outblaze Egyptian hieroglyphics. Printed cottons rival printed silks in favor.

Of course since the materials are so complicated, the styles must be simple so when you choose a figured fabric you also choose a plain frock. That explains this dress for the bench or the country club.

THE WHEAT PROBLEM

The price of wheat concerns everybody, but when the price tumbles below normal, then the farmer suffers. Although the subject seems of little interest to people who work in the factories, it has become of extreme interest to all classes, as the collapse of the wheat market may cause a political convulsion that will sweep aside old parties and give new a dominating voice in the direction of our government. The question of wheat is one of our daily bread and thus it comes home to all classes as well as the farmers.

It is well now that the Minnesota election is over, to consider the economic conditions that led up to the election of Magnus Johnson and the overwhelming defeat of the republican candidate.

In view of the facts concerning the rapid decline in the price of wheat, it will not appear at all surprising that the farmers have welded their political power against the republican administration. First of all, let it be remembered that recently the price of wheat dropped to the level of 1905 at the present time, while prices of other commodities remained on the war basis as far as a great extent did the wages of farm laborers. The price of wheat declined 20 cents a bushel in a month or 25 cents in 20 days.

The farmers cannot afford to sell their wheat at from 70 to 80 cents per bushel where the cost of production is computed to be $1.35 per bushel. They have been looking around for relief and looking to the causes of this drop in the price of wheat. It is not unprecedented, of course, although it is the result of new economic conditions. The wheat exported from the United States in the last 12 months was 52,000,000 bushels less than for the same period of the previous year. This indicates a decline in the foreign demand. Indeed the collapse of the wheat market is largely due to the fact that the supply exceeds the demand; but the trouble has been accentuated by the speculation of the speculators.

The farmers naturally look to the government for relief, but receiving no encouragement, they decided to form a new party with a view to bringing about such a change in political conditions as will enable them to obtain the relief sought. As a result, the republican candidate sustained a severe defeat in the Minnesota contest, and this is only the beginning of a vicious campaign in the interest of the farmers of the country.

There is much speculation as to why the price of wheat has suffered such a radical decline at the present time. One reason advanced is that Canada is now supplying the European market with wheat where American wheat was formerly sold. Canada can produce wheat more cheaply than can the American farmer, because there immigration is unrestricted, and the wages of the farm laborers much lower than in the United States. Europe is raising more wheat than formerly and, therefore, buying less from abroad. Thus a combination of circumstances operates against the American wheat grower.

The addition to our population by immigration is 115,000 per month, which is much less than came under the old law, but even this increase adds about 1,000,000 to our population annually. This also will help to increase the consumption and, under the price of wheat in addition to this, the price will be less without raising the price of wheat for the farmer. The price of wheat is so low that the farmer cannot afford to produce wheat and will devote their energies more largely to crops that will bring better financial returns. Besides, so far as they can afford to do so, the farmers will hold their present supply of wheat pending an improvement in the market, that will bring the price up to what is considered normal. Such an increase is expected as the price of wheat sometimes takes a sudden jump just as recently it dropped suddenly.

By these methods and perhaps by speculative manipulation, will be reduced the additional profit and farmers can be due to overcome the present depression and secure a fair return for their products. In the future of our cooperative marketing, the consumers may assist us also to anticipate again that will enable them to take care of the present unfavorable conditions until prosperity is again restored.

ELECTRIC WIND MILLS

In four quarters we had a description of a light current of wind mill, but if the production of J. H. H. Harrington, a British scientist, he verified his new use for country dotted over with wind mills erected for the purpose of generating electricity to furnish lights and heat. The mill would supply power to electric motor and thus power a factory that could be transferred to any distance. This plan seems plausible and which he quite successful if the wind would come to blow a half day and a new wind, merely by this and others. But where a windmill remains under inoperative condition it would surely be a waste of considerable proportions. It would be of comparative to find some resourceful business forming a stock company to finance the construction of about windmills and considering the success of the Lowell and Keeler mills and the scheme to extract gold from sea water, then why should not the electric wind mill be a hoisting success as a stock selling scheme?

THE GASOLINE TAX

The legislature this year enacted a measure providing for a two cent tax on every gallon of gasoline used by motor vehicles. There was strong opposition to this measure on the ground that the tax would be excessive, but those who favored it argued that it was necessary as a source of

College Boy Farmers

"Did you ever employ college boys on your farm?" "I tried it one year," said Mr. Phillips, "but they were not satisfactory. They didn't work hard, they didn't get along with the hired men, and every time they were through with a job they'd either round to give their college yell and stampede all the cattle on the place."

Aged Reeler Exonerated

At Kent assizes yesterday the grand jury threw the bill against Rev. Charles H. H. Batten, 56-year-old reeler of Harlowdown, near Canterbury, who was charged with converting to his own use part of an offering, it was stated at the police court in Kent, the three people at the church service put into the collection in shillings, five shillings and threepence, respectively, and that the reeler gave the church money only 12s 6d of this. The rector said that Lady Katherine Hardy must have been mistaken in thinking she put in 5s and had only put in 2s 6d.

John Was Surprised

Little John's father was a congressman and a republican, and accordingly John breathed an atmosphere of politics and believed only republicans went to heaven. Her big sister's chum was the rector of a church, and though she frequently stayed with the family, John considered her a rank heretic and only tolerated her through a natural reverence of heart. One evening when the chum happened to be accompanying the guest chamber, John snubbed her into looking for her sister and surprised the lady of democratic convictions in the midst of her devotion. "Oh," exclaimed John in open-mouthed amazement, "I never knew you said your prayers! I thought you were a democrat!"

"Hold 'er News"

That "old home town" picture which appears as a daily feature of The Sun, is no popular in Canada as in Lowell and other American cities, was demonstrated to my complete satisfaction when on a recent visit to that foreign country to the north. In a small New Brunswick city a horse came up the street at breakneck pace and as he passed an American standing near a "Hold 'er News" picture, she's a-rear-ing!" It was almost like a greeting from an old friend and my curiosity as to where the learned the expression was so widely used until I had purchased a St. John paper and there saw in prominent display "The Old Home Town" picture. What amazes one, however, is the fact that the expression was so widely used until I had purchased a St. John paper and there saw in prominent display "The Old Home Town" picture.

THE MAN ABOUT TOWN

John Lee, well known in local business and fraternal circles, is a firm believer, like thousands of others, in choosing good roads on which to drive his automobile. Recently, Mr. Lee invited me for a ride in his cozy Oakland sedan. Needless to say, I accepted without hesitation, and one of our party suggested a trip to the shores of Lake Massawippi. Now veteran drivers of motor vehicles know that the roads of Lowell and at the approaches to the lake are none too good and are far from conducive to automobile longevity. For the sake of preservation and comfort, therefore, John chose the following route to Lakeview, which is recommended to others: West Sixth street to Allen to Hill street to Pleasant and thence to the smooth road in the Deane section of Lakeview avenue. "That's it," at first I thought, "I would go by way of Nashua but he took the shortest way."

William J. Hunt of 3 Fourth street was highly commended by doctors at the Lawrence General hospital last Sunday for his quick work in handling a severe leg wound on an automobile accident victim between Lawrence and Haverhill. "Bill" was returning to Lowell with George McKenna after a trip to Hampton when they came upon an injured man, whose leg was bleeding profusely and who suffered much pain. "Bill" who has studied medical matters as a side-line, immediately perceived the danger to the man's bleeding to death and hastened the wound to the extent of stopping the flow of blood. The victim was then removed to the hospital where physicians stated that Mr. Hunt's timely act probably saved his life.

From every angle, I hear, the Elks' room at the Lakewood ballroom last Monday night was a success. All the funds collected in connection with the event were donated to the Elks' charity fund to be used for the annual Christmas dinner celebration for Lowell's poor this year. During an intermission in the dance, Barney Horan, the talented son-in-law of Mrs. Horan, established himself as an anchor, Mr. Horan sold bottles of tonic for substantial amounts, the income directly swelling the Christmas fund treasury. I heard it remarked afterwards that Barney need never fear for a position when his voice goes back on air. There are plenty of local bluffs who would be willing to live low as long as he can sell flowers the way he did for the Bee Bee on Earth.

Although the fall and winter seasons still are several months removed for which we now think, it is interesting to reflect a little and wonder how close to how the future population of Lowell will turn out for the city election which the Plan B charter says must come this year an election for the selection of nine ward councilmen and two school committee members. In the election of charter an "off year" comes biennially and 1923 is one of this sort. On the face of it, it seems fair to presume that interest will be found to be a little comparable with that which usually prevails on occasion of an election of a mayor, but individual ward contests may develop to a point where a fairly representative vote will be cast for a real competition, not a mere formality, as the case may be. Ward committees chosen this year yet tenure of office of two years, while the two councilmen members elected will serve for three years.

Berton Braley's Daily Poem BALANCE

A little less of politics, a little more of sense,
A little less of blindness and a little more of vision;
A little less of theory and more experience,
A little less of doubtfulness, a little more decision;
A little less, a little more, of one thing or another
Would tend to clear the heavy fog in which we grope and smother.

A little less of selfishness, a little more of charity,
A little less of ugliness, a little more of beauty;
A little less mendacity, a little more of verity,
A little less of shirking and a little more of duty;
A little less of standing still, a little more of movement,
Would give a lot of added speed to progress and improvement.

A little less stupidity, a little more of thought,
A little less of serpent and a little more of dove;
A little more of faith and works by which a task is wrought,
A little less of hatred and a little more of love;
A little more, a little less, of one thing or another
Would make each mortal, more or less, his fellow mortal's brother.

Arrested as Bad Check Passer

NEW YORK, July 25.—Decorated five times for bravery in the World war, Frank G. Nelson was arrested yesterday for cashing a forged check for $100. He was taken to the station house after a tussle, in which he turned a pistol on detectives who had trailed him to his rooming house.

Nelson, it was alleged, cashed a check in the Plaza Hotel two weeks ago on which had been forged the name of Frederick Conner Williams, a name of a New York state and Canada where they have relatives.

RECREATION CONGRESS CITY IN COAL BUSINESS

Annual Recreation Congress to Be Held in Lincoln's "Home Town"

Abraham Lincoln's "home town," Springfield, Illinois, has been chosen for the Tenth Annual Recreation Congress to be held October 8-12, announces the Playground and Recreation Association of America, under whose auspices the congress will meet.

From 500 to 600 delegates including leading figures in education and community recreation are expected to attend. Last year's congress at Atlantic City brought together 500 persons from the Pacific coast, the south, middle west, east, Canada and from abroad. The sessions will be held in the state capital and the state arsenal.

"Since the purpose of the congress is to discuss practical and tried methods of promoting community recreation, it is appropriate," says Joseph Lee of Boston, president of the congress, "that the home of Lincoln, America's most community minded citizen, should be selected for the congress. We expect that many persons will want to see Lincoln's house, the office where he practiced law, and the chair where he sat as a member of the legislature."

Prominent among the speakers on the program as announced to date are James Mollenbach, chairman of the trade board of Hart, Schaffner & Marx; Professor Robert E. Park of the University of Chicago; Homer J. Ebeling, president of the Backley Department Advertising company and of the Direct Mail Advertising Association of America; Mary E. McDowell of the department of public welfare of Chicago; and Joseph Lee, president of the Playground and Recreation Association of America.

Among the topics to be discussed are the national physical fitness campaign, athletics for girls and women, adult recreation, the church and recreation, home play, small town and open country recreation, recreation for colored people and summer camps.

TYNGSBORO BOY IN AIRPLANE CRASH

Howard Russell Carlin, 10-year-old son of Mrs. Eva Carlin of Tyngsboro road, North Chelmsford, went through a terrifying experience yesterday and received minor injuries while a passenger in a British Avro airplane which plunged 300 feet into the East River and flared, instantly killing its pilot, Lt. Kenneth Snow, 101st Observation Squadron, Mass. National Guard, and injuring another passenger, Sergt. Oscar D. Locals of Somerville, a cousin of the Carlin boy.

According to the lad's mother he left on the 14th to visit his grandmother in West Newbury and she cannot account for his presence in East Boston, although she knew he was to spend a few days with other relatives in Medford.

This is the second fatality and the third accident at the field since the airport was opened about a month ago. Last Thursday John Stevens of Littleton, N. H., was drowned when an airplane driven by Lieut. Caldwell S. Phillips collapsed with a crumpled wing and dived 300 feet into Boston harbor. Stevens' body has not been recovered.

According to officers at the air port Snow decided to fly his own plane, a former British Avro machine, in spite of the knowledge that the tank contained little gasoline. At an altitude of 200 feet the engine choked, Snow trying to turn to a dry landing spot. He then lost control of the machine. When the plane struck the mud flats, it's pilot was crushed by the motor. Locals and Carlin were no sooner removed from the debris than the wreckage burst into flame. The rising tide soon extinguished the fire.

Lieut. R. C. Moffatt, regular army officer stationed at the air port, who was in the air at the time of the accident landed and took charge. Snow graduated from Harvard in 1921. During the war he was decorated with the Croix de Guerre as an ambulance driver. He later enlisted in the Royal Canadian air force. During the recent national guard encampment at Camp Devens he was flying as an observer and director of artillery fire. He was a son of Frederick E. Snow, a Boston attorney and former member of the Maine house of representatives.

Mayor Curley, of Boston, to Act if Price Goes Above $16.50 Per Ton

Report on Last Year's Venture Into Coal Business Shows $3000 Profit

BOSTON, July 25.—Mayor Curley threatens he'll put the city of Boston into the fuel business again next winter on a $200,000 basis, unless local fuel retailers maintain prices for the coming season at or below last winter's $16.50 per ton rate. With a 50-cent per ton increase imposed on July 18, domestic coal is now selling in Boston at $15.50 per ton, sidewalk delivery.

The mayor made the threat last night in handing to reporters the official accounting of City Supt. of Supplies Frank P. Rock on last winter's municipal $250,000 venture into the coal business. The Rock document shows that, although the city was its own best customer in the enterprise, a profit of nearly $3000 remains to the city on the whole undertaking as the $250,000 loan is paid back and the committee's books on the deal closed.

The accounting states that 14,000 families made purchases of various sizes from the 6351 tons of coal and 240 tons of coke which the supply department purchased. The cash revenue from these sales was $40,772.48, but a great deal of the coke remained unsold, and this coke, and many hundred tons of the coal were absorbed by city departments for use in municipal buildings. The Emergency Fuel committee disposed of $16,626.74 worth of the coal and coke to these various city departments.

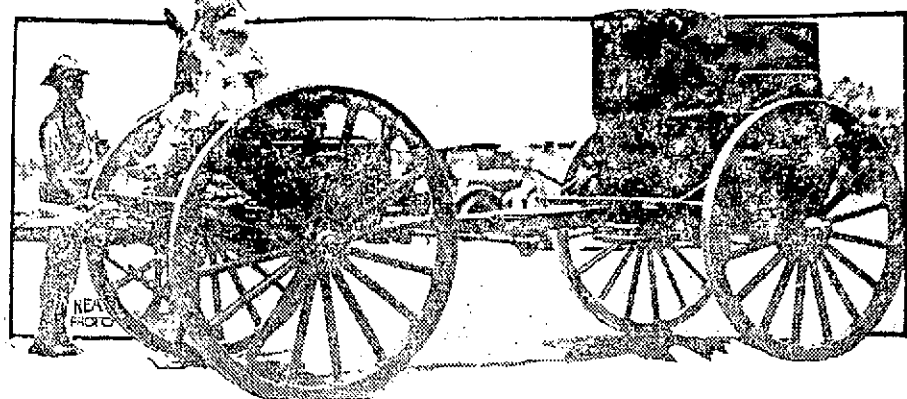

The city sold coal to its customers last winter at the rate of $14.50 per ton, the mayor stated, as against the $16 per ton (minimum) rate of local dealers. That portion of the coke disposed of to the public was put up neatly in bag lots.

SHOUTING MOB OF FANS ATTACKS UMPIRE NALLIN AFTER GAME

Police Rush to Aid of Umpire and With Drawn Clubs Save Him From Beating—Decision on Trapped-Ball Cause of Disturbance—Ruth Knocks 23rd Home Run

NEW YORK, July 25.—Great excitement prevailed in Shibe park, Philadelphia, yesterday when the Yankees trimmed the Athletics 6 to 2. As the game ended a shouting mob of fans rushed over the field and assaulted Dick Nallin, base umpire. City police hurried to his assistance and with the aid of their batons, saved him from a hard beating. The fans objected to his decision when Whitey Witt singled to left field in the seventh inning. Walker made an effort to hit the ball, and argued eloquently when Nallin declared he had caught it on a short hop. During the game Ruth knocked his 23rd homer, and tied Cy Williams for the lead.

NEW RECORDS IN MAJOR LEAGUES

NEW YORK, July 25. (By the Associated Press.) Major league baseball promises to produce another bumper crop of unusual achievements this year, if the first three months of the campaign can be taken as a criterion. Among a variety of brilliant performances, these new high marks so far this year have been written into the game's annals:

By Cy Williams, Philadelphia Phillies, who in 20 years; Grover Alexander's achievement in winning 51 games without losing a base on balls; a mark set by the St. Louis Cardinals and Phillies on May 11, and the new American league standard for single game runs scored, when Cleveland overcame Boston, 27 to 3, on July 7.

Other noteworthy feats recorded so far include: Six hits in six times at bat by James Pomeroy of Brooklyn, played games by Edward Scott, Yankee shortstop, in batman struck out by Darryl Vance, of Brooklyn, in game with Giants, 25, scoreless, ending pitched by Stanley Coeslesko, of Cleveland.

Walter Johnson, Washington pitcher, added his name to the list this week when he passed the 3000 mark in strike-outs.

WILL HOLD PICNIC AT KNOPP'S POND

The Lady Franklin Council No. 17, of the Sons and Daughters of Liberty, held their regular meeting last Monday evening, with a large gathering of the members in attendance. State Councilor Emma Holden presided. A business meeting, at which many affairs were discussed, closed the report of the picnic committee. The committee has arranged its plans to hold the third annual picnic at Knopp's pond, Groton, on Saturday. The members will meet at the post office at one o'clock where a truck will take them to Sister Cooper's camp at the pond.

On August 11, the state council will hold its annual picnic at Salem Woods. This includes all the councils of Massachusetts and a large attendance is expected.

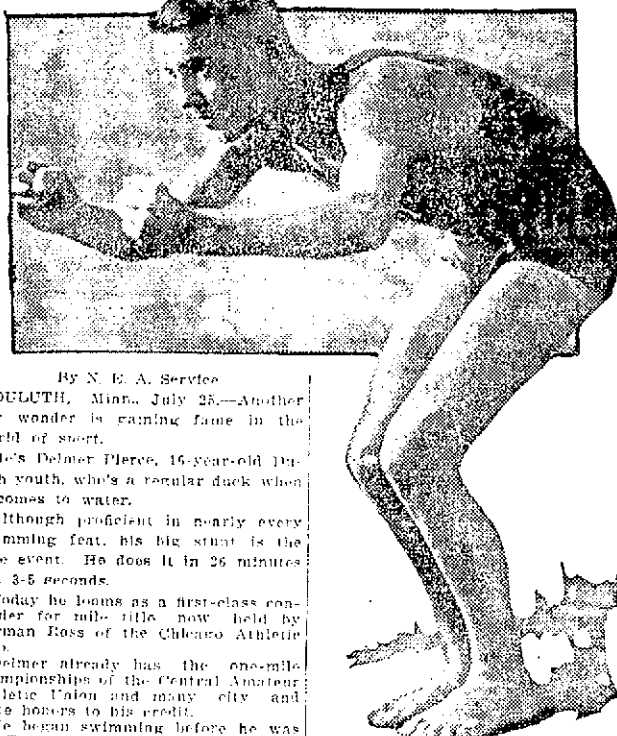

During the meeting David Thompson, State Treasurer, entertained the members with interesting news from other councils.

Sister Lila Grover, treasurer, is ill at home, while Sister Underwood and Sister Foster are gaining rapidly, although they are still at the hospital. A class initiation is planned for the first meeting in September, and the installation of officers will take place at the first meeting in October.

Boys "Duck" Out After Title

By N. E. A. Service
DULUTH, Minn., July 25.—Another boy wonder is making fame in the world of sport.

He's Delmer Pierce, 16-year-old Duluth youth, who's a regular duck when it comes to water.

Although proficient in nearly every swimming feat, his big stunt is the mile event. He does it in 26 minutes and 35 seconds.

Today he boasts as a first-class contender for mile title now held by Norman Ross of the Chicago Athletic club.

Delmer already has the one-mile championships of the Central Amateur Athletic Union and many city and state honors to his credit.

He began swimming before he was 7. Two years ago he began taking part in aquatic meets, after months of strenuous training under Coach William Trepanier of the Good Fellowship Club of Duluth.

Coach John Miller, former swimming monitor at Princeton university, now with the Duluth Boat club, has taken Delmer under his wing.

And he expects great things of him in the national meet in Chicago in August.

GRANITEVILLE TEAM DEFEATS VISITORS

The Philadelphia All-Stars were forced to bow to "Lefty" Purvess of the Abbot Wonders at Graniteville last evening, the town boys winning by the score of 4 to 2. The big south-paw had things pretty much his own way and steamed them over the pan in his league style. He struck out six men and allowed but one base on balls during the nine innings of play. The All-Stars will play the Lowell (C.M.A.) on the Peabody campus Sunday. The score:

FABER'S CAREER READS LIKE FICTION

BY RILEY EVANS
Opportunity knocks at the door. In many different ways.

Making the grade to the big leagues is the goal of every ball player. To many the chance to succeed is brought about by some great happening.

Take the case of Bill Kerr, who for a number of years played winning ball for the Chicago White Sox. Season after season Kerr pitched good ball in various minor leagues. His established reputation was that he would some day make the big leagues.

Sports attracted the young man in the backwoods town of Iowa. Small of stature, his appearance and physical endowments made it seem probable that he would never be able to stand the strain of the majors.

After a particularly good season with the Milwaukee club, the American League, Kerr was called up to the Sox. He would be entirely ready to go, but the Sox were the only club willing to gamble on the "half pint" pitcher. Kerr was known because of his size.

Kerr made possible his own opportunity and delivered.

Kinks of the Links

Player apparently slightly topped his ball in making his stroke and his club came into contact with the ball twice. That is such a happening treated?

The rule says that if a player, when making a stroke, strikes the ball twice, the penalty shall be one stroke, but he shall incur no further penalty by reason of having played while his ball was in motion.

Has a player the right to change a position for a better ball where the play calls for him to clear a water hazard?

He has no such right. To permit such an action would result in players carrying certain type balls. A player can never change the ball in play unless it is badly cut or cracked, thereby rendering it unfit for play.

If a player, from the tee boxes, that his first ball has gone out of bounds, in order to save delay in ascertaining the exact location of the ball, has he the right to play a second ball and then continue to play his first ball, if he deems that it has not gone out of bounds?

A player has such a right. There is no penalty if he plays a second ball and then discovers his first ball to be out of bounds. He is entitled to play the first ball just as though he had never brought a second ball into play.

SCHWAB WITNESS AT MORSE TRIAL

Testifies He Recommended "With Considerable Force" That Morse Drop His Sons

"Never Found It Wise to Have Relatives in My Business," Says Steel King

WASHINGTON, July 24.—Charles M. Schwab, who served during the war as head of the emergency fleet corporation, appeared in court here today as a witness for the defense in the trial of Charles W. Morse and others charged with conspiracy in connection with war time ship building operations.

The steel magnate had been mentioned in previous defense testimony as expressing a high opinion of the Morse plant at Alexandria, Va., the efficiency of which has been questioned by the government. He came to Washington from his home in Lovett, Pa., after a week-end conference with Morse's counsel.

Detailing a conversation with Morse and his three sons in which he urged Morse to drop his sons from the ship building business, Schwab said he recommended "with considerable force" that Charles W. Morse curtail the activities of his sons in the business.

"In all my experience," he said, "I never have found it wise to have relatives in my business. I would never have any of them. I told Charles W. Morse he was making a mistake from the standpoint of efficiency in having his sons in there."

"What did the Morzes say?"

"They did not agree. Like most men's sons, they would not work like I would have people work for me."

Referring to the activities of Morse's sons, the witness said he recommended that they be cut 50 per cent., and that Morse accept "as an example of patriotism." He had no knowledge if they actually were reduced.

BRATTLEBORO, Vt., July 24. Major Frederick Craven, who is acting for Geraldine Farrar and others in the purchase of the T. N. Vail estate in Lyndonville, arrived here today and when interviewed relative to the plans said it had been intended to keep the matter private for the present, but most of the plans seemed to have leaked out. He admitted that Miss Farrar was the dominating figure in the deal, but said the details could not be given out at this time. Other persons are to be associated with her in making the Vail place a big health resort for the use of selected guests from this country and Europe, because of the healthful qualities of the water which the late telephone king brought to the place through an elaborate pipe system, and he believed that the deal involved more than a million dollars. While the list of stockholders is not officially announced, Major Craven mentioned the names of Dr. Kendrick Smith and Dr. Oscar B. Ames of Boston, and Dr. George R. Anderson and John R. Manley of Brattleboro, besides Miss Farrar and himself. Mr. Manley is one of the present owners.

OPPOSES MOTION FOR DISMISSAL

Evidence of Alleged Love Affair Between Mrs. Ryan and Maxwell Presented

Latter Under Indictment for Writing Poison Pen Letters to Allan A. Ryan

NEW YORK, July 24.—Evidence of an alleged love affair between Mrs. Allan A. Ryan, wife of the financier, and George Maxwell, president of the American Society of Authors, Composers and Publishers, who is under indictment for writing poison pen letters to Mr. Ryan, was disclosed by Assistant Dist. Atty. General today in a brief opposing Maxwell's motion for dismissal of the indictment.

Contending that the letters addressed anonymously to Mr. Ryan contained information possessed only by Mrs. Maxwell, Mr. Maloney quoted from two letters and radiograms alleged to have been exchanged by Maxwell and Mrs. Ryan. He also detailed at large Maxwell's friendships with several other women.

Detailing the love affairs, which he asserted were followed by the sending of letters to Mr. Ryan in which it was charged that Mrs. Ryan had been unfaithful to Maxwell, Mr. Maloney's brief read:

"On April 6, 1932, Mrs. Ryan sailed for Europe on the Mauretania with Mrs. Hahn of Park avenue. On board they met Maxwell and the infatuation between Maxwell and Mrs. Ryan then developed. Mrs. Ryan and Maxwell stayed in London and Paris and took a trip to Lake Como and Milan.

"While in Europe Mrs. Ryan and Maxwell exchanged letters and telegrams when they were separated. Mrs. Ryan returned to New York June 6 on board the steamship Majestic, and exchanged riding with Maxwell daily while on board ship. On her return she went to York harbor, Mr. Ryan's family. Maxwell returned June 11, and made two trips to York harbor. He visited Mrs. Ryan, spending ten days or two weeks each time. While in New York he called Mrs. Ryan almost daily on the telephone.

"On Oct. 7, Mrs. Ryan sailed with her five children on the steamship Republic for Europe. Her husband and oldest son in this country, Mrs. Ryan and Maxwell exchanged radiograms daily on her trip across. After her arrival she exchanged three or four radiograms a week with Maxwell. On March 7, 1933, Maxwell sailed for France on the Paris and exchanged radiograms daily with Mrs. Ryan from the steamer.

"It was three days later, the brief asserts, that Mr. Ryan received the first of a series of anonymous letters, telling of the alleged familiarity of Mrs. Ryan and Maxwell. It is for the alleged writing of these letters that Maxwell has been indicted, for forgery as well as sending scurrilous communications.

SEN. WALSH DISCUSSES COAL SITUATION

CLINTON, July 24.—"I regretted to hear upon arriving home after three months' absence, in which I have been out of touch with American affairs, that the anthracite coal situation is again a critical one, with the prospects that coal will be scarce and high priced," said United States Senator David I. Walsh this morning. The senator arrived in Clinton last night from New York, where he landed yesterday from the Levittan.

"I still feel," said the senator, continuing his discussion of the coal situation, "that congress made a grave mistake in the last session in not passing substantial legislation, instead of turning over the coal question to a commission for investigation. The commission probably cannot report before the middle of the winter, and its findings can have no effect on the situation as it confronts the people at this time. I believe before congress adjourned that the president should call an extra session immediately to discuss the coal question and other matters which are of vital importance to the people. It was a great mistake not to do so."

While in Europe, Senator Walsh met many men of importance in an unofficial way, and spoke as deeply as possible into conditions over there, especially as they affect American people. He was repeatedly convinced that the European people do not care a rap for moral assistance from the United States. Men in this country are worrying about Europe, but in Europe itself, he said, "the idea that they are wanting and waiting for moral assistance, is preposterous," he said.

WAGE PARLEYS ON IN EARNST

Representatives of Coal
Miners and Operators Hold
Two Sessions Daily

Uninterrupted Supply of Winter's Fuel Depends on Result of Conferences

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., July 25.—(By the Associated Press) Wage parleys between representatives of miners and anthracite operators on which depend the uninterrupted supply of next winter's fuel, were resumed today in earnest. Spurred by the approach of August 31, when the present wage contract expires, the joint committee of eight has begun holding two sessions a day.

The program of increased activity was announced on the heels of the operators' denial of published charges that they were not making a sincere effort to avoid a strike, that they were "stalling" in the present negotiations. The sole development of yesterday's conference was the determination to devote more time daily to the negotiations, and the proposal of Thomas Kennedy, president of union district No. 7, that the wage agreement provide for establishment of a "joint" sub-committee, directed to make an engineering study of the elements of the job of mining anthracite coal for the purpose of building up a scientific and more equitable basis for rate making. This is the language of the United States Coal commission in recommending No. 7 of its recent report on the coal industry.

Asserting that shipment of anthracite to New England is unusually heavy this season, the operators, through E. W. Parker, director of the anthracite bureau of information, today replied to the reported request of Representative Treadway of Massachusetts for an extra session of congress to forestall a repetition of last winter's shortage and to consider the United States coal commission's recommendations for supervision of the industry. "As a matter of fact," says the state member, "the anthracite industry during April and June—the first three months of the present coal year—than was shipped there in the corresponding period of 1921, and the shipments in that year were heavy. The 1922 shipments naturally were restricted by the strike."

According to a statement issued by the Massachusetts commission on the necessities of life, the anthracite shipments to that state during April, May and June, 1922, were 1,315,446 tons. The shipments during the corresponding months of this year totaled 1,360,265 tons, or an increase of 44,819 tons.

"If, as Mr. Treadway claims, Massachusetts dealers are a thrice-able to fill orders for fuel, it is obvious that the anthracite already shipped into that state has been delivered to consumers and is now in their cellars for winter use. Certainly that is a very fortunate situation."

DISTRICT COURT CASES

Two Young Men Arrested as Suspicious Persons Are Released—Other Cases

The two young men who were picked up last night as suspicious persons were released in the district court this morning after they agreed to return to Cambridge with Inspector Cote of the Cambridge police, to tell what they knew regarding the whereabouts of two other young men whom the police want in connection with the $3000 robbery of a cashier of the Penn Metal Co. of Cambridge.

The men are Robert A. Stevenson of Watertown and Stephen Stankaus of Cambridge, and they were driving a Cadillac touring car, the registration number of which failed with the number on the car used in the hold-up. During yesterday afternoon, however, state and Cambridge police officers questioned the two young men at Willowdale. The officers came here on a claim that the men they were seeking were at Willowdale, but when they arrived the men they were seeking had gone.

Not knowing that Stevenson and his companion had been questioned during the afternoon, Officer Kilian and Officer Robert of the state constabulary brought the men to the police station. Nazario, the state constabulary, found a charge of driving an automobile without a license in his possession, as Judge Pickman agreed with Attorney Henry V. Charbonneau for the defense, that the statute requirement of sufficient notice was not given the defendant.

Boasie Corneille was found not guilty on a charge of driving an auto so as to endanger lives, but on a charge of failing to stop when signaled by an officer, he was fined $20.

Charles Corkeford was fined $25 on a charge of driving an automobile recklessly, and Marjory Marshall was fined $20, also on a charge of violation of the motor vehicle laws.

Wm. J. Carney, who was found lying on the tracks on Dutton street in a drunken condition yesterday, was sentenced to the house of correction for two months.

Safety Lessons FOR The Auto Driver

Prepared by the National Safety Council—Issued by the Massachusetts Safety Council.
NO. 17. SPRINGS, FRAME, LOADING AND TIRES

Broken springs and many serious accidents may be avoided by:
a.—Keeping spring clips tight.
b.—Using rebound clips.
c.—Lubricating springs properly.
d.—Proper loading.
e.—Careful driving, especially on rough roads.

The frame can be kept in good condition by:
a.—Frequent cleaning. This prevents rust.
b.—Keeping all bolts tight.
c.—Do not pile too high. Neither should the load be too heavy. Load heavy articles on the bottom and light articles on top.
d.—No part of the load should extend beyond the sides of the car. e.—Neither should the load extend beyond the back of the car. If pipes or other articles are loaded which must project beyond the end of the car, a bright red flag in daytime, and a red light at night should be attached at the far end of the projection. Be especially careful when turning corners to make sure that you do not swing around and strike pedestrians, objects, or other vehicles with the projecting load.

Times sometimes cause accidents.
a.—A blow-out, especially when on a front wheel and when speeding, may overturn the car or result in some other serious accident.
b.—It is dangerous to run a car with a soft tire, especially if the rim is of the quick detachable type. Soft tires, especially on front wheels, make steering difficult, consume extra power, and may accidentally be pulled off the car easier than if they were properly inflated. Therefore if tires are worn, if the car is traveling at high speed it may even cause the car to overturn.

c.—If rims are of the split rim type, lock the properly before it is put on the wheel. Be sure wedges are screwed up tight.

d.—Do not over-inflate the tires. Air tires at 30 pounds in a garage may show over 30 pounds after the car has been driven at a good speed over a hot road.

e.—If wire wheels are used, be sure they are securely locked, not only does it increase the liability of the car to skid, but it is extremely hard on tires.

No Report on Murder Probe

Continued
The inquiry for the state after a previous murder indictment had been dismissed when the county prosecutor's office announced it was not ready to go to trial was said to have called his last important witness before the jury yesterday when the dead man's parents came from Haverhill and testified.

The jury met shortly after 10 o'clock this morning and only one witness, whose identity was shrouded in mystery, was admitted.
Supreme Court Justice Robert F. Wagner designated by Gov. Smith to preside at the investigation and at any trial which might result, came to the courthouse today for the first time this week. His presence was taken as an indication that he had come prepared to receive any report the grand jury might hand down and that this presentation might be expected today or at least before the end of the week.

LOWELL HUMANE SOCIETY

Many Sad Cases of Destitution and Neglect Contained in Report

The July report of the Humane society submitted today by Agent Richardson contains several appalling cases of destitute children, abandoned fathers and mothers, and neglected households that breathe of the aboriginal and cause the more civilized and humane to shudder at the very thought of such existence. For example, in the early spring Agent Richardson was called upon to investigate conditions in a local mill and slept all day and whose mother worked days, leaving the children practically parentless for 24 hours.

CHARLES F. RICHARDSON

each day. When the agent entered the house on the particular day of his investigation, two of the youngsters were asleep on a hard, cold floor, wrapped up in a blanket that had seen better days.

The only food in the house at the time was a portion of dry bread while the furniture consisted of a couple of broken down chairs and a table. In the winter time, the agent was informed, the children were forced to walk half a mile to school, through snow and clothed only in scant apparel. Characterizing conditions as "deplorable," Agent Richardson summed up the heartless mother and father into the local district court on a charge of neglect of children. The case was continued two or three months in order to see if the state of affairs would be remedied. At the last investigation, a general improvement was noted and in the meantime it was learned that the combined wages of the parents averaged $4 weekly, the greater portion of which they deposited in the bank.

Another interesting case brought to the society's attention was that of 7 children whose parents were slightly delinquent. The children were so apparently neglected that their teacher was forced to send them home from school. When the Humane Society heard of the situation, immediate steps were taken to remedy it, with the result that conditions have considerably improved. This also was a suburban case.

A third case—one in the city—concerned four children of minor ages. It was discovered that the father was a drunkard and spent most of his time in jail while the mother, worn out and dejected, was helpless to provide the proper means of support. During a thunder storm the children were left alone in the yard while the mother went off to her daily work. The home conditions were horrible, but the fatherless inhabitants lived their lives as best they could under the circumstances. With the assistance of the Humane society, this family has taken on a new lease of life.

The cases cited above are but a few of the many that have come under the care of the society. There are others, of course, and there always will be, until the millennium is reached, or until parents learn that their first duty is to their children.

Agent Richardson wishes to thank those who contributed funds for successfully carrying on the organization's work. In the larger cities, where the Humane society is called upon to kill cats, a fee is charged. Here, work of this nature has been done gratis, but contributions will be gladly accepted in the future.

WOMAN DEFENDS GEORGE MAXWELL

Mrs. Gallatin, Prominent in N. Y. Society, Comes to Defense of Accused Man

Maxwell Charged With Writing Poison Pen Letters to End Affairs With Women

NEW YORK, July 25.—Mrs. Beatrice Gallatin, wife of Albert Gallatin, socially prominent, today came to the defense of George Maxwell, president of the American Association of Authors, Composers and Publishers, who is accused by the district attorney's office of having written 135 poison pen letters in the last 20 years, and making seven women victims in those letters in order to end affairs with them.

Mrs. Gallatin, named with Mrs. Allan A. Ryan in a brief filed yesterday by Assistant District Attorney Maloney opposing a motion to dismiss indictments returned against Maxwell, ailed she ever had accused Maxwell, formerly publisher of the "New York Mirror," of having penned the letters. Her husband, however, had taken to the district attorney's office a letter connecting her name with that of Maxwell.

"Mr. Maxwell," said Mrs. Gallatin, "knew Mr. Gallatin and me every possible assistance in trying to find the writer of the letters."

"I met Mr. Maxwell at a dinner party. That was in December. I did not see him again for a month, when we met again at a dinner. Then he had dinner with Mr. Gallatin and me and later we were his guests at dinner. Then the letters began to come. I did not, as stated, meet Mr. Maxwell at the home of Mrs. Eva Burnside. I never thought Mr. Maxwell wrote those letters. I know him but three months and only slightly."

"Mr. Gallatin took the letters to the district attorney and retained private detectives, inasmuch as Mr. Maxwell's name was included in the letters, was very naturally consulted with him. He gave us every possible assistance. He was a most gentlemanly, high-minded person."

Maloney in his brief contended that in attacking the character of women in poison pen letters he was alleged to have sent husbands, that the ex-plaintiff himself, a similar note to make it appear that he, too, was a victim of the author.

Referring to the contention of the prosecutor that Maxwell knew what the letter to Gallatin contained and did so the fact that one copy of the communication was missing, Mrs. Gallatin said: "I believe something of the sort was done by detectives, but I know none of the details of that incident. Mr. Gallatin and I were convinced, however, that Mr. Maxwell knows no more about the authorship of the letters than we do."

The next action expected in the Maxwell case is the decision of Judge McIntyre of general sessions on the motion of his counsel to dismiss the indictments. Judge McIntyre has not indicated when his decision might be expected.

SLEEVELESS DRESSES AND "MAKE-UP" BARRED

CHICAGO, July 25.—The persistent wearing of sleeveless dresses and the excessive application of "make-up" will mean the dismissal of women employees of the People's Gas Light and Coke Co., Johnnie Doane, dean of women, said today in a notice to women employees. Doane also requested the women employees to wear hats while on the street.

The order affects more than 600 girls and all have accepted the ruling rather than lose their jobs. Dean Doane said:

Five Couples Celebrate Their Golden Wedding Anniversaries

OMAHA, Neb., July 25.—The quaint old First Presbyterian church of this city not only starts many couples on their married careers but it keeps them happily married.

With a record of 147, 218, it already has 147 couples celebrating a golden wedding anniversary. And in this era of divorce, that's something to be proud of.

Other church congregations have more pretentious homes than this old building at 224 and 226th streets, but so long as the latter can challenge all couples in its record for domestic tranquility, it will stand alone.

Religious First

And according to the pastor, Rev. A. Clyde Mahaffey, the church itself can claim and rightfully, most of the credit of the long and happy marital union of its fifty-third anniversary members.

"In the lives of every couple, religion has been first," he says. "I think you will find that true and steady and constant observance of the Sabbath day, and the other religious duties, are the foundation of a happy and lasting marriage."

"goodness" counts for longevity."

At any rate, here is the proud and generous example of the good influence of the Bible church:

A Long List

Rev. and Mrs. J. B. Jackson, 75 and 77 respectively, celebrated their golden wedding last month.

Mr. and Mrs. James Anderson, 78 and 75, passed their fortieth anniversary together July 16.

Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Cowgill, 73 and 71, celebrated in September.

Mr. and Mrs. T. C. Wallace, 73 and 71, were wedded half a century on Nov. 26 last.

And finally, the golden wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Richey was not so recently celebrated, having occurred in February, 1922.

Mr. and Mrs. Cowgill's only daughter, Ruth, married Mr. and Mrs. Anderson's son. This has resulted only in closer harmony between the old companions.

Two missionaries, one preacher and two pastors' wives are numbered in the ranks of the children of that inner circle.

STANDARD OIL BLAMED FOR CARIBOU FIRE

BANGOR, Me., July 25.—In a ruling rendered from the United States circuit court it is held that static electricity may develop to a dangerous extent in the filling of a gasoline tank from a storage tank if the tank is not properly grounded by a safety chain.

The ruling overrules the exceptions and the verdict stands in the suits of R. L. Hatcher and the Briggs Hardware company of Bangor, which were awarded damages of $17,000 and $20,000, respectively, against the Standard Oil company for the destruction of storehouse and goods burned in a fire which originated by an explosion at the tank station of the oil company adjacent to the Briggs and Hatcher property near the Caribou railroad station.

The ruling calls attention to the evidence which showed that the defendant corporation was aware of the danger of static electricity and drivers of tanks, were provided with chains to form ground connection and carry off the electricity and ordered to use them, but on this occasion the driver of the tank found that the chain was broken, and not being able to see it, started to fill the tank truck with no chain.

PRESIDENT HARDING BUSY ON ADDRESSES

HENDERSON WITH PRESIDENT HARDING, July 25.—Speech composition for Mr. Harding and rest for Mrs. Harding comprised the principal business in life aboard the navy transport Henderson today, as she crept forward through the inside coast of British Columbia toward Vancouver, B. C., where the president is to receive the greetings of Canada tomorrow.

First in the president's thought at this time is an address at Seattle, the city which he will touch after reaching the states, in which he is expected to give some of the conclusions reached by him on the first visit by a chief executive of the United States to the northernmost member of the nation.

Daugherty to Fight Boycott Against Union Labor

Court action might be taken in San Francisco when he announced his plans before leaving here last night. He said he had been advised by the state association of employers from San Francisco that a boycott against labor is as indefensible as a boycott against industry and he now stood ready to test that position in the courts.

The right of the worker to organize into trade unions for lawful purposes is as fundamental in America as the right to vote and as well supported in law," the attorney general said. "Any attempt to infringe on that right is illegal."

Indicted in Federal Courts

SAN FRANCISCO, July 25.—Two industrial associations and 16 firms and individuals were indicted in federal court here recently for violation of the Sherman anti-trust law. They were specifically charged with refusal to sell building material to contractors unless at least 50 per cent of their employees were non-union.

The cases have been set for trial Sept. 12.

It was charged that the fight was first inaugurated by the building material men in an attempt to establish the American plan in the building industry here. The government charged that such an attempt was an effort to restrict trade and commerce. The government, in its complaint, asked that the associations be dissolved and that the firms and individuals be convicted of violating the Sherman anti-trust law.

Several weeks ago the persons now under indictment were tried in the state courts for violation of the Cartwright law, patterned after the Sherman anti-trust act. At that trial the defendants were acquitted.

Jaywalking Safe? Seems So, Argues Expert, Suggesting Way Out

Most accidents to pedestrians occur at the crossings, and are due to the fact that the public is not properly educated in the proper use of the sidewalks.

This is the basis of the argument for safer crossings in crowded sections of cities, presented by Edward Williams Hobbs in the National Safety News for July. At the same time, Hobbs presents a possible solution to this important phase of the traffic problem.

It isn't fair, he says, to urge the pedestrian to cross only at intersections while there are the most hazardous crossings. "If we wish to keep him off the middle of the highway, we must make the intersections attractive to him."

We are not alone, Hobbs maintains. We have traffic officers at crossings, who temporarily block traffic making it move in waves. It is a many-headed monster, on a still number of days. We have buttons, bumpers or mechanisms which can easily be straddled by reckless drivers. And there are many pedestrians and all sorts of standards to enable motor traffic.

THE CYCLATORY SYSTEM OF TRAFFIC

But they do not prevent accidents to pedestrians. Neither does moral suasion, or any sort of education, declares Hobbs.

Physical Prevention

"The physical principle to be observed in the prevention of the pedestrian is physical prevention, rather than moral suasion," he says. "We will really not remove until street crossings are equipped with honest-to-goodness physical safety appliances. And we must not be afraid to experiment a little."

It is to be noted on an efficient system for controlling traffic, Hobbs considers two methods, one is what he called the cyclatory system, by which the traffic swings about a central pivot or circular mark. "It enters the procession and leaves it, and does not cross immediately," he explains. "But there is a serious objection to this plan."

"The traffic keeps moving, which is good for the traffic, but not so good for the pedestrian. The pyramid system also requires close room, which can be spared in a big business section."

The other plan for traffic control and greater safety, is the erection of barriers in the middle of a street at the four points of the crossroads. But these barriers must be of a design which to insure stability, height to prevent straddling and lowness to prevent concealment of small objects such as children.

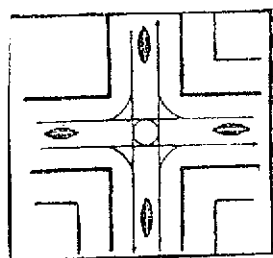

Narrow Streets

Also, shaped long and rather high, their contour prevents a direct and destructive crash. And, most important, they give a less confusing line of traffic and afford safety to pedestrians half-way across the street.

Such barriers would practically divide a wide road into two narrow streets. And the narrow street, argues Hobbs, is the safest.

"An experienced traffic officer will tell you that, generally speaking, fewer accidents occur on narrow streets than on broad ones. The reason is that automobile traffic is flexible. An automobile can circle around a street car, cut across, move in and out, perform all sorts of exciting contortions on a wide street."

"Where there isn't room for it to perform, it has some idea where it is."

going, and can keep out of the way. You know where its head is going to be. There is some certainty about the direction."

CHEAPER FUEL OIL

French engineers have been experimenting with a gas oil for automobile engines, which they say has proved more efficient than gasoline. Besides, the gas oil is cheaper.

MORE RESIGNATIONS IN THE PHILIPPINES

MANILA, July 25.—(By the Associated Press).—The chaotic political situation here, marked recently by the resignations of all the principal native officials of the Philippine government and by a legislative request that Governor General Leonard Wood be recalled, is in a more muddled state after the resignation last night of six appointive representatives and senators of the legislature.

The latest group to quit as a result of differences between Governor General Wood and Filipino officials, explained they wished to give the governor an opportunity to fill the positions with legislators who would not embarrass him.

Friends of Wood, however, contend that the governor's enemies, notably Manuel Quesada, head of the new laboristic party, are bent on ousting all of Wood's appointees in an effort to make it appear that the people approved the resignation of the entire membership of the cabinet and council of state on July 17.

In the recall resolution adopted by the legislature, Monday night, it was asked that unless immediately independent were granted the Philippine Islands a Filipino governor-general be appointed to replace Wood.

Fresh news has been proclaimed a holiday by Mayor Edwin Brown.

Senator Johnson who, since he arrived home, has consistently refused to discuss either domestic or foreign politics, tonight will set forth European impressions gleaned during four and one-half months traveling in seven European countries. FORMER HOME OF MARK TWAIN BURNED

RODDING, Conn., July 25.—Storrsfield, the home of Samuel L. Clemens (Mark Twain) in his closing years of his life, the picturesque villa on a ridge in this town, was burned early today. It was unoccupied for many years after Mr. Clemens' death and was bought last December by Mrs. Margaret E. Givens of New York as a summer home.

The home was built to carry out the ideas and wishes of Mr. Clemens, and with the other buildings comprised a country estate.

Mrs. Givens, her daughter Thelma and her son, Edward, were in the house when the latter discovered the fire in the laundry on the main floor. All were obliged to leave in their night garments. Practically nothing in the house was saved. The fire is thought to have started from spontaneous combustion among painting materials which were in the laundry.

The largest telescope in the world is on Mount Wilson, California. It magnifies the brightness of a star 250,000 times.

SANS TO BE EXAMINED U. S. INVESTIGATORS TO VISIT RUSSIA

Alleged Author of Threatening Letters to Mabel Normand and Mack Sennett

MARTINEZ, Cal., July 25.—Albert Sans, alleged author of threatening letters to Mabel Normand, film actress and to Mack Sennett, motion picture producer, was held today pending a hearing to determine his mental condition. Police declare he apparently is obsessed by a hallucination that he is responsible for the death of William Desmond Taylor, screen director slain in Los Angeles in 1922.

The motive in Miss Normand was loosely written, but the text of Sans' letter, which was dated in 1922, indicated that Sans, who was at that time engaged to wed the actress, was obsessed by the similarity between the name of Sans and that of Edward Smith, who was sought in connection with the killing of Taylor, authorities accused the theory that the men are related.

For more than a year Sans has worked at a section hand for the Southern Pacific company. In his room, police said, were found many unmailed letters addressed to Miss Normand and Sennett.

LOST BREATH, HEART FLUTTERED after least exertion

Weak, Nervous Woman Obtains New Health

"Some months ago, I found that after the slightest exertion I suffered from shortness of breath and fluttering of the heart. Frequently I would get a stabbing pain in my left side. I tried various remedies but instead of improving I became worse. My appetite failed and soon even the sight of food became repulsive. Then my nerves became so weak that I would 'jump' at any sudden sound.

One day a friend called and, seeing my exhausted condition, told me that what I needed was Wincarnis. I began taking it right away and in all I have taken four bottles and I am amazed at the wonderful result. Today I am strong and well and I owe all my renewed health to Wincarnis."

THREE SMALL FIRES LAST EVENING

A alarm from box 35 at 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon called part of the fire department to 10 Shaffer street where a small fire was in progress under the porch of the house at that number. The blaze was extinguished in short order and the damage was slight.

A small gas fire in Central street resulted in a still alarm at 7:10 last night and this was extinguished before any damage was done.

An alarm at 10:50 o'clock last night called the apparatus to 54 South Whipple street where a burning candle had set fire to rags saturated with kerosene and benzine. The fire was extinguished before any damage had been done to the house.

AMUSEMENT NOTES

THE STRAND—The name, Richard Barthelmess, is synonymous to good pictures, so that it is not unusual to expect that the coming three days' engagement of the Strand, beginning on Thursday, of the film "The Town Scandal," of the big First National production, with Richard Barthelmess and Dorothy Fitch in the starring roles will score heavily with the patrons. It should, it will. Advance indication of this exceptional spectacle based on the judgment of those who are in a position to pass on the merits of such picture-making, indicate that "Ferry" is one of the best film offerings of the kind shown on any screen. It is a dramatic creation based on one of the recent popular sea stories that attracted widespread attention all over the country. The screen version is many degrees more enjoyable than the book story. Barthelmess will be favorably remembered for his varied and successful characterizations of the past, and in "Ferry" he is said to surpass all former efforts. As the young, retiring seaman who falls in love with a girl to whom his father objects, he is most interesting, and when he starts to assert his manhood, and finally triumphs, only after considerable adventure and overcoming countless obstacles, he is truly enjoyable. Dorothy Fitch was always interesting and charmingly entertaining, and in her portrayal of the girl, she was in one of her best parts. The locale of the story is on the broad Atlantic, and most of the scenes were taken on shipboard. The cinematography is excellent, the story is interesting, the story, while the photography and scenic creations are all praiseworthy.

The second feature of the Strand and Hill 1 produces riveting Gladys Walton in "The Town Scandal." It is a comedy drama that affords a full measure of entertainment, with Miss Walton in the role of a Peaches girl, who comes back home to be village, where she creates considerable of a stir in her community to wake up the sleepy town. Miss Walton is the same lively, sparkling, enjoyable young woman that she was in her past screen triumphs. Don't miss seeing this whole bill, which includes a comedy and Woody, as well as excellent musical numbers.

Today offers the last chance of seeing the great story of the North woods, "Lackey," and the enterprising Marshall Nelson comedy drama, "Minnie."

HAUTO THEATRE—The story of "Outlaws of the Sea" the new picture which opens at the Hauto Thursday is a clever and up-to-the-minute in popular interest. It deals with bootlegging as it is carried on between the Florida coast and an island on the Bahamas, and concerns the trick of the leader in concealing his activities with the innocent aid of a simple old man, a retired sea captain, and his pretty daughter.

Chief of these bootleggers is Leonard Craven, an unscrupulous fellow. He vents his river home to Captain Abel Grimshaw and the latter's daughter, whose occupancy of the house will divert suspicion from the owner. The old man is soon persuaded to plot Craven's boat, secretly laden with liquor on its many trips.

This is the basis of the story from which surprise develop, with a big melodramatic climax topping them all. There are exciting moments when the girl dashes out to sea in a motor boat to warn her father of the danger awaiting him; there is a spirited chase by a revenue cutter in pursuit of these outlaws of the sea, and innumerable scenes of daring on the high seas.

Marguerite Courtot, heroine of "Down to the Sea in Ships," has the leading role in "Outlaws of the Sea." In this type of role she is always at her best. She likes the part, as a daughter of the sea.

The companion attraction is "I Am the Woman," a stirring western drama starring the female "Bill Hart" of the screen, Texas Guinan, Miss Guinan dis- proves the theory that the fair sex are unable, on the contrary, she is a two- sided-two can cowboys and will make you sit up and take notice.

An extremely funny comedy entitled "The Artist" and a featured drama with Leo Maloney conclude a very satisfactory program.

MERRIMACK SQUARE

That performance will be given this evening at the Merrimack Square theatre. "Where the Pavement Curves" an excellent box program, Metro production with an all-star cast, headed by Alice Terry, and "An Old Sweetheart of Mine," a comedy-drama based on the famous story of "The White- comb Blues." There will be an entire change of program tomorrow afternoon.

Features for Thursday, Friday and Saturday will be "Shirley" a Paramount production of Spanish life with Bebe Daniels, Conrad Nagel and Robert Brower in the leading roles, and "A Gentleman of Leisure," starring Jack Holt in a comedy-drama of exceptional merit. It will be a typical Merrimack Square program, the best obtainable.

Celebrated in the screen world for the superiority of his cinema productions, Northern Skansky, Paramount producer of pictures de luxe, has given to the public another masterpiece in "Shirley." A fantastic drama featuring Bebe Daniels and Conrad Nagel. This is a type of motion picture that has not often been tried, but a type nevertheless, which lends itself splendidly to screen treatment, which should and doubtless will prove an excellent attraction. It may safely be said to be one of the big pictures of the year.

"Shirley" is not only a powerful and unique production, but it seems destined to establish for itself a niche in the cinema hall of fame, absolutely apart from any other picture. Produced by a master director with the most careful attention to details, the various characters portrayed by recognized screen artists, the story one of the most unusual ever developed on the screen, the photographic technique of A. S. C. is beautiful as it was complicated and difficult, because of the many trick and double exposures that were demanded, its massiveness and splendor of settings all tend to the conviction that it cannot fail to have tremendous public appeal.

"A Gentleman of Leisure," the other feature, stars Jack Holt, one of the screen's most popular actors, in a production that will be long remembered for its outstanding qualities. The usual excellent surrounding program will be presented.

RADIO CONCERT FOR LOWELL BOY SCOUTS

The Boy Scouts who are now enjoying camp life at Island pond are to be treated to an unusual radio concert in the near future, according to plans made by Scout Executive Edwin Melton. A talk will be given by James E. West, national executive of the Scouts, in New York city and will be relayed by telephone to Syracuse, N. Y., and from there broadcasted by the powerful radio station of the Western Electric Co., WGY. The subject of Mr. West's talk will be "Boy Scouts of Lowell." In addition to the address, the WGY orchestra will sound trumpet calls and play several marches for the benefit of the boys at camp.

$1,500,000 DAMAGE CAUSED BY FLOODS

CASPER, Wyo., July 25.—With unofficial estimates of the damage placed at nearly $1,500,000, the region west and northwest of here, extending as far as Thermopolis, is struggling to get its head above the flood waters which deluged that section yesterday. The damage to the Burlington railroad between Arming-ton and Thermopolis, a stretch of 50 miles, is estimated at close to $750,000. Because wires are down, most of the way between Arming-ton, 35 miles northwest of here, and Thermopolis, it is difficult to ascertain the exact amount of damage. No loss of life is reported thus far.

Several bridges on the Northwest-ern railroad between here and Lander are reported swept away by high water. Two Northwestern trains are marooned near Mouna, a short distance west of here.

LOWELL ELKS HOLD SPECIAL MEETING

A special meeting of the Lowell lodge of Elks was held last night in their rooms on Middle street for the purpose of hearing a report by the building committee on the progress of their work. A lengthy report of the committee was read and it outlined all the work that has been done from the time of the committee's formation up to the present time. It was stated in this report that the original plans for a new building had to be changed because the lowest bid amounted to nearly $15,000 more than was originally planned to spend on the building and the committee had refused all bids and ordered the architect, Harry P. Graves, to draw new plans omitting a great deal of ornamental and other work considered unnecessary and the omission of which will not affect either the stability or convenience of the building.

The committee will meet next Friday evening and the bids submitted under the new plans will be opened.

The building committee consists of the following: George M. Harrigan, president; John P. Farley, secretary; John J. Healey, treasurer; Michael J. Marchant, Frederick F. Meloy, John P. Marchant, Frederick F. Meloy, James Sallane, Irving R. Libby, James Kenney, John P. Marchant and Frank Mallory.

MEETING OF CITY EMPLOYEES' UNION

The regular meeting of the Municipal Employees union was held last night in Trades and Labor hall with President Daniel Moynihan in the chair. Routine business was transacted, 7 new members were initiated and 12 applications for membership received. The grievance committee was ordered to again wait on Mayor Donovan for a decision in regard to appeal for equal wages and hours for the men employed in the water department. It was also voted to invite the Federation of State, City and Town Employees to hold their annual convention in this city. Following the business meeting a social hour was enjoyed.

PRIEST'S CASE TO GO TO JURY TODAY

DENVER, Colo., July 25.—The case of Rev. Walter A. Grace, whose trial began in federal district court here yesterday, probably will go to the jury today, in the opinion of attorneys interested in the trial. The defendant, former pastor at Arvada, a Denver suburb, is charged with forgery in connection with applications for a permit to ship liquor in considerable quantities to the Millen home for the aged in this city.

Warning by Fuel Head

and cities of the state. Fear of a possible shortage, he said, was driving consumers to hoard coal and fear of loss of business was forcing dealers to bid against one another in the market. He added that this fear was used by unscrupulous elements in the coal trade to increase prices and to facilitate sales.

Only one-half of the supply of anthracite needed for next winter can be mined before September 1. Mr. Hultman stated, and advised the purchase of one-half anthracite and one-half low volatile bituminous coal by householders. Anthracite transportation has only been slightly affected and no car shortage now exists, he stated.

"There is no reason to fear that the people of the state will freeze to death next winter for lack of domestic fuel," he added.

Some Changes Recommended

accounts receivable are long overdue and the recommendation follows that the city solicitor should take some action toward their collection.

"Also," says the audit report, "the assessors should determine if the balance of the 1919 excise tax outstanding at the present time was properly assessed and if it is uncollectable, the amount should be abated."

In regard to the record of receipts of the vocational school kitchen, the report states all cash on hand was verified, but adds that the receipts have not been paid to the treasurer, but have been expended by the director of the school course, which is contrary to certain general laws. It is recommended that the receipts be paid to the city treasurer hereafter and that expenditures be approved by the school department and auditor.

Some action should be taken toward the collection of old bills of the cemetery commission, says the report, some of which are long overdue.

Of particular interest is the following paragraph taken from the report relative to sinking fund investments: "The sinking fund investments were examined and listed and the income verified, all of which was found to be properly recorded on the books. Although the par value of the securities in the sinking fund is in excess of the loan, the market value of some of these securities maturing subsequent to the maturity of the loan, is considerably less than their par value. It will be necessary, therefore, for the city to make an annual appropriation until the amount which can be realized on the securities is equal to the loan."

The report recommends that departmental officials should have called to their attention Chapter 252, Acts of 1922, which is an amendment to Chapter 44 of the former laws and refers to the oversteering of appropriation accounts, or to the incurring of liabilities to be paid from the revenue of the following year and is as follows:

"Any city, town or district officer who knowingly violates, or authorizes or directs any official or employee to violate any provision of this chapter shall be punished by a fine of not more than $100 and the mayor, selectmen, prudential committee, or commissioners, shall and five tax payers may, report such violation to the district attorney who shall investigate and prosecute the same."

Continuing the report takes up at some length the accumulation of land claims in the city department relative to cases where aid had been rendered to persons having a settlement outside of Lowell, and for which no bills have been sent out.

"During the past few months, however," says the report, "the billing of a number of cases has been completed and reimbursement received by the city on these accounts. It was suggested that the billing of the remaining cases be completed to the end of the current year. This suggestion met with hearty response from the department superintendent and the entire office force is devoting as much time as possible to this work. It seems probable, therefore, that all the accounts will be billed by the end of 1923 and even if not all collected, will be collected in the balance sheet as accounts received."

The report states that surety bonds furnished by departmental officials for the faithful performance of their duties were examined and found to be in proper form.

The summary of the report contains an expression of appreciation for the co-operation and courtesy extended by every departmental official of the city during the process of the audit and the appreciation of the chief examiner is extended on behalf of his assistants and himself.

THE WHEAT PROBLEM

The price of wheat concerns everybody, but when the price tumbles below normal, then the farmer suffers. Although the subject seems of little interest to people who work in the factories, it has become of extreme interest to all classes, as the collapse of the wheat market may cause a political cataclysm that will sweep aside old parties and give new dominating voices in the direction of our government. The question of wheat is one of our daily bread and thus it comes home to all classes as well as the farmers.

It is well now that the Minnesota election is over, to consider the economic conditions that led up to the election of Magnus Johnson and the overwhelming defeat of the republican candidate.

In view of the facts concerning the rapid decline in the price of wheat, it will not appear at all surprising that the farmers have wielded their political power against the republican administration. First of all, let it be remembered that recently the price of wheat dropped to the level of 1905 or the pre-war basis, while prices of other commodities remained on the war basis as to a great extent did the wages of farm laborers. The price of wheat declined 20 cents a bushel in a month or 25 cents in 70 days.

The farmers cannot afford to sell their wheat at from 70 to 80 cents a bushel where the cost of production is computed to be $1.35 per bushel. They have been looking around for relief and looking to the cause of this drop in the price of wheat. It is not unprecedented, of course, although it is the result of new economic conditions. The wheat exported from the United States in the last 11 months, was $2,000,000, less than for the same period of the previous year. This indicates a decline in the foreign demand. Indeed, the collapse of the wheat market is largely due to the fact that the supply exceeds the demand; but the trouble has been accentuated by the manipulation of the speculators.

The farmers naturally look to the government for relief; but receiving no encouragement, they decided to form a new party with a view to bringing about such a change in political conditions as will enable them to obtain the relief sought. As a result the republican candidate sustained a severe defeat in the Minnesota contest, and this is only the beginning of a vigorous campaign in the interest of the farmers of the country.

There is much speculation as to why the price of wheat has suffered such a rapid decline at the present time. One reason advanced is, that Canada is now supplying the European market with wheat where American wheat was formerly sold. Canada can produce wheat more cheaply than can the American farmers because their immigration is unrestricted, and the wages of the farm laborers much lower than in the United States. Europe is making more wheat than formerly and, therefore, buying less from abroad. Thus a combination of circumstances operates against the American wheat grower.

The addition to our population by immigration is 110,000 per month, which is much less than came under the old law; but even this increase adds about 1,000,000 to our population annually. This also will help to increase the consumption and to raise the price of wheat. In addition to this, there will be less wheat raised during the next few years as the production of wheat for its production is unprofitable and will devote their energies more largely to crops that will bring better financial returns. Besides, so far as they are able to do so, the farmers will hold their present supply of wheat pending an improvement in the market that will bring the price up to what is considered normal. Such an increase is expected as the price of wheat sometimes takes a sudden jump just as recently it dropped suddenly.

ELECTRIC WIND MILLS

In New Quenote, we had a description of a quaint arrangement of wind mills; but if the prediction of J. H. H. Building, a British scientist, be verified, we may see the country dotted over with wind mills erected for the purpose of manufacturing electricity to furnish lights and heat. The mill would simply run an electric motor and thus produce electricity that could be transmitted to any distance. This plan seems plausible and might be quite successful if the wind would continue to blow a stiff breeze and not work merely by fits and starts. But where a wind mill pumps water in copious measure, it would surely run a motor of considerable proportions. It would not be surprising to find some resourceful financiers forming a stock company to finance the construction of electric windmills, and considering the success of the Colwell and Keeley scheme and the scheme to extract gold from seawater, then why should not the electric wind mill be a howling success as a stock selling scheme?

THE GASOLINE TAX

The legislature this year enacted a measure providing for a two cent tax on every gallon of gasoline used by motor vehicles. There was strong opposition to this measure on the ground that the tax would be excessive, but those who favored it argued that it was necessary as a source of revenue for the construction and maintenance of public highways claiming that as the motor vehicles, particularly the heavy trucks, are most severe upon the highways, they should be willing to contribute the amount of this tax to keep the roads in proper condition at all seasons of the year.

The two cent tax has been adopted in a number of states and the proceeds have been applied for the improvement of the public highways to the satisfaction of all concerned. Here in Massachusetts, the highways are in fair condition, and it is claimed that a tax of one cent per gallon would be sufficient as it would probably bring in five million dollars per annum. A movement is now on foot to apply the referendum on this tax measure with a view to defeating it or at least putting it off for another year. The petition for the referendum must be filed within three months from the enactment of the bill.

OUR FOREIGN COMMERCE

Already we see the disadvantage of not having a merchant marine in active operation carrying American products to foreign markets and bringing to our ports the products of foreign climes which we do not produce in sufficient volume at home. In April, the latest month in which figures have been compiled, only 31 per cent of our total foreign trade was carried in American ships as against 43 per cent in the entire year of 1920. This indicates that our merchant marine is of very little use as conducted by the republican regime at Washington. It is true, that President Harding fought for a ship subsidy but his plan did not meet the approval of his party, and hence our merchant marine, which was constructed at a vast expense, is largely tied up in dock and in the initial stages of decay. It appears that the republican party professes to have our commerce conducted in foreign bottoms, thus placing our foreign commerce in alien hands. This failure of the republican congress to operate the merchant marine to advantage has already caused a slump in our export business that has affected not only the farming industry but other lines of business.

NO EXTRA SESSION

It seems to be definitely settled that President Harding will not call a special session of congress at the behest of Senator Brookhart of Iowa who has made the appeal ostensibly in the interest of the farmers. Just at present if congress were called into session there would be a great outpouring of oratory and a profuse presentation of petitions for the relief of the farmers; but the administration would be unable to reach any conclusion unless it accepted the declaration of Senator La Follette and his supporters of the farm labor party. It is quite certain, therefore, that there will be no extra session just now as the first actual business that the republicans would have to transact might be in the nature of a surrender to the La Follette forces.

PREVENTABLE FIRES

A fire breaks out in some American home every four minutes, reports W. E. Mallahan, general manager of National Board of Fire Underwriters. He claims that out of four of these fires are preventable, that they result from carelessness or ignorance of fire conditions. Five destroys 65 million dollars worth of homes a year. And 15,000 lives a year are lost from the same cause. To play safe, and exercise a degree of care that will guarantee absolute safety against the danger of starting fires, it is the simplest thing that causes the firemen to tread that cause and safety will result. It requires constant care, and this alone can cut down the enormous fire losses in life and property.

ROADS

The good roads program as now planned, will include 11,000 miles of federal aid roads in the United States. The plan is to build the roads in the order of their importance. A big sum has been made. When completed, nine tenths of the American people will live within 10 miles of one of these federal roads. The primary purpose of these highways, of course, is pleasure for travelers, though the good roads, being laid out at the expense of the taxpayer, are of great importance for the purpose of applying economy. However, pleasure is a sufficient purpose for most of us, and the more the roads are built, the more the pleasure is increased. The good roads are not only a pleasure but a necessity for the completion of the federal roads from the Atlantic to the Pacific will give the business a fresh impetus.

TELEPHONE STRIKE

At a time when it was expected that the telephone strike was ended, it is found that the American Federation of Labor opposes the cause of the strikers and decides to levy an assessment upon its large membership for the benefit of the strikers' operation. There is here another proof of the necessity and expediency of arbitration which should have been adopted in the first place.

"Did you ever employ college boys on your farm?" "I tried it one year," said Mr. Cobble, "but they were not satisfactory." "Didn't they work hard?" "No," said Mr. Cobble, "they were too good. They had a job they gathered round to give their college yell and stamped all the cattle on the place."

Aged Reformer Exonerated

At Kent assizes yesterday the grand jury threw out the bill against Rev. Charles H. H. Barton, 80-year-old rector of Harbledown, near Canterbury, who was charged with converting to his own use 25,000 of part of an offering. It was charged at the police court that the three people at the church service put in the collection 10 shillings, five shillings and three pence, respectively, and that the rector gave the church parden only 12 1/2 of this. The rector said that Lady Katherine Hardy must have been mistaken in thinking she put in 25, and had only put in 25 1/2.—London Mail.

John Was Surprised

Little John's father was a congressman and a republican, and accordingly John breathed an atmosphere of politics and believed only republicans went to heaven. The big state of Illinois had the right to elect a democrat, and though she frequently stayed with the family, John considered her a rank heretic and only tolerated her through a natural largeness of heart. One evening, when the church happened to be occupying the guest chamber, John assembled into it looking for her sister and surprised the lady of democratic convictions in the midst of her devotions. "Oh," exclaimed John in open-mouthed amazement, "I never knew you said your prayers! I thought you were a democrat!"

"Held for Now"

That "old home town" picture which appears as a daily feature of The Sun, is as popular in Canada as in Lowell and other American cities, was demonstrated on a recent trip to that glorious country to the north. In a small New Brunswick city a horse came up the street at breakneck pace and as he passed me, he uttered a sound near "Held for Now," which I heard as a greeting from an old friend and my curiosity as to where the horse learned the expression was not satisfied until I had purchased a $5.00 John paper and there saw in prominent display "The Old Home Town" picture and the name of the Sun.

THE MAN ABOUT TOWN

John Lee, well known in local business and fraternal circles, is a firm believer, like thousands of others, in choosing good roads on which to drive his automobile. Recently, Mr. Lee invited me for a ride in his cozy Oakland sedan. Needless to say, I accepted without hesitation, and one of our party suggested a trip to the shores of Lake Umbagog. Now veteran drivers of motor vehicles know that the roads out of Lowell and at the approaches to the lake are none too good and are far from conducive to automobile longevity. For the sake of preservation and comfort, therefore, John chose the following route to Lakeview, which is recommended to others: West Sixth street to Alden to Hilditch to Pleasant and thence in the summer road to the Forest section of Lakeview. Try it! At first I thought he would go by way of Nashua but he took the shorter way.

William J. Hunt, of 3 Fourth street, was highly commended by doctors at the Lawrence General Hospital last Sunday for his quick work in bandaging a severe leg wound on an automobile accident victim between Lawrence and Haverhill. "Bill" was returning to Lowell with George McKenna after a trip to Hampton when they came upon an injured man, whose leg was bleeding profusely and who suffered much pain. "Bill," who has studied medical matters as a sideline, immediately received the danger of the man's bleeding to death and bandaged the wound to the extent of stopping the flow of blood. The victim was then removed to the hospital where physicians stated that Mr. Hunt's timely act probably saved his life.

From every angle, I hear, the Elks' rose party at the Lakeview ballroom last Monday night was a success. All the funds collected in connection with the event were donated to the Elks' charity fund to be used for the annual Christmas dinner celebration for Lowell's poor this year. During an intermission in the dance, Barney Horn, the famous master, with a Minerva orchestra, established for himself a reputation as an auctioneer. Mr. Horn sold bouquets of roses for substantial amounts, the income greatly swelling the Christmas fund treasury. I heard it remarked afterwards that Barney need never fear for a position when his voice goes back on him. There are plenty of good hearts who would be willing to take him as long as he can sell flowers the way he did for the First People on Earth.

Although the fall and winter seasons still are several months removed, for which we are very thankful, it is interesting to reflect a little and wonder more as to how the voting populace of Lowell will turn out for the city election which the Plan B chapter says must come this year. An election for the school board and ward committee and two school committee members. Under this form of charter on "old" year comes biennially and 1923 is one of the sort. On the face of it, it seems fair to presume that interest will be mounted to a level commensurate with that which usually prevails on occasion of an election of a mayor, but individual ward contests may develop to a point where a fairly representative vote will be cast for school committee, men or women, as the case may then be. Ward councilors chosen this year set tenure of office of two years, while the two executive members elected will serve for three years.

A little less of politics, a little more of sense,
A little less of blindness and a little more of vision;
A little less of theory and more experience,
A little less of doubtfulness, a little more decision;
A little less, a little more, of one thing or another
Would tend to clear the heavy fog in which we grope and smother.

A little less of selfishness, a little more of charity,
A little less of ugliness, a little more of beauty;
A little less mendacity, a little more of verity,

Would give a lot of added speed to progress and improvement.

A little less stupidity, a little more of thought,

RECREATION CONGRESS CITY IN COAL BUSINESS

Annual Recreation Congress to Be Held in Lincoln's "Home Town"

Abraham Lincoln's "home town," Springfield, Illinois, has been chosen for the Tenth Annual Recreation Congress to be held October 8-12. Announces the Playground and Recreation Association of America under whose auspices the congress will meet. From 500 to 900 delegates including leading figures in education and community recreation are expected to attend. Last year's congress at Atlantic City brought together 600 persons from the Pacific coast, the south, middle west, east, Canada and from abroad. The sessions will be held in the state capital and the state arsenal. "Since the purpose of the congress is to discuss practical and tried methods of promoting community recreation, it is appropriate," says Joseph Lee of Boston, president of the congress, "that the issue of Lincoln, America's most community-minded citizen, should be selected for the congress. We expect that many persons will want to see Lincoln's house, the office where he practiced law, and the chair where he sat as a member of the legislature." Prominent among the speakers on the program as announced to date are James Mullenbach, chairman of the trade board of Hart, Schaffner & Marx, Professor Robert E. Park of the University of Chicago, Homer J. Buckley, president of the Buckley Department Advertising Company and of the Direct Mail Advertising Association of America, Mary E. McDowell of the department of public welfare of Chicago, and Joseph Lee, president of the Playground and Recreation Association of America. Among the topics to be discussed are the national physical fitness campaign, athletics for girls and women, adult recreation, the church and recreation, home play, small town and open country recreation, recreation for colored people and summer camps.

TYNGSBORO BOY IN AIRPLANE CRASH

Howard Russell Carlin, 10-year-old son of Mrs. Eva Carlin of Tyngsboro road, North Chelmsford, went through a terrifying experience yesterday and received minor injuries while a passenger in a British Avro airplane which plunged 300 feet into the East Boston mud flats, instantly killing its pilot, Lt. Richard Snow, 101st Observation Squadron, Mass. National Guard, and injuring another passenger, Sgt. Oscar D. Leavin of Somerville, a cousin of the Carlin boy. According to the lad's mother he left on the 11th to visit his grandmother in West Newbury and she cannot account for his presence in East Boston, although she knew he was to spend a few days with other relatives in Medford.

This is the second fatality and the third accident at the field since the air port was opened about a month ago. Last Thursday John Stevens of Littleton, N. H., was drowned when an airplane driven by Lieut. Caldwell S. Phillips collapsed with a crumpled wing and dived 200 feet into Boston harbor. Stevens' body has not been recovered. According to officers at the air port Snow decided to fly his own plane, a former British Avro machine, in spite of the knowledge that the tank contained little gasoline. At an altitude of 200 feet the engine choked, Snow trying to turn to a dry landing spot. He then lost control of the machine. When the plane struck the mud flats its pilot was crushed by the mud. Leavin and Carlin were no sooner removed from the debris than the wreckage burst into flame. The rising tide soon extinguished the fire.

Lieut. R. C. Moffatt, regular army officer stationed at the air port, who was in the air at the time of the accident landed and took charge. Snow graduated from Harvard in 1921. During the war he was decorated with the Croix de Guerre as an ambulance driver. He later enlisted in the Royal Canadian air force. During the recent national guard encampment at Camp Devens he was flying as an observer and director of artillery fire. He was a son of Frederick E. Snow, a Boston attorney and former member of the Maine house of representatives.

Mayor Curley, of Boston, to Act if Price Goes Above $16.50 Per Ton

Report on Last Year's Venture Into Coal Business Shows $3000 Profit

BOSTON, July 25.—Mayor Curley threatens he'll put the city of Boston into the fuel business again next winter on a $500,000 basis, unless local fuel retailers maintain prices for the coming season at or below last winter's $16.50 per ton rate. With a 50-cent per ton increase imposed on July 15, domestic coal is now selling in Boston at $16.50 per ton, sidewalk delivery. The mayor made the threat last night in handing to reporters the official accounting of City Sup. of Supplies Frank P. Rock on last winter's municipal $250,000 venture into the coal business. The Rock document shows that, although the city was its own best customer in the enterprise, a profit of nearly $3000 remains to the city on the whole undertaking, as the $250,000 loan is paid back and the committee's books on the deal closed. The accounting states that 14,000 families made purchases of various sizes from the 6354 tons of coal and 2348 tons of coke which the supply department purchased. The cash revenue from these sales was $49,724.31, but a gross deal of the coke remained unsold, and this coke, and many hundred tons of the coal, were absorbed by city departments for use in municipal buildings. The Emergency Fuel committee disposed of $34,626.74 worth of the coal and coke to these various city departments. The city sold coal to its customers last winter at the rate of $14.50 per ton, the mayor recalled, as against the $16 per ton (minimum) rate of local dealers. That portion of the coke disposed of to the public was put up mostly in bag lots.

AMERICANS DEFEAT BELLEVUES—GARDNER WINS OVER C. M. A. C.

AMERICANS RALLY IN SEVENTH AND DEFEAT BELLEVUES 2 TO 1

With Score 1 to 0 Against Americans, Two on and Two Out, Carr Crashes Hit to Centerfield, Scoring Two Runs and Converting Apparent Defeat Into Victory—Trask and Mulno in Pitchers' Battle

TWILIGHT LEAGUE STANDING

Team	W	L	P
West Ends	1	0	1
Americans	1	0	1
Bellevues	0	1	1

Americans 2, Bellevues 1.

Eddie Carr, the peppery catcher of the Lowell Americans, came to bat in the seventh inning of last night's Twilight League game on the South common—a playoff of the 1 to 1 tie between the Americans and Bellevues. Carr was a great responsibility in a situation that demanded nerve and gameness. His team was trailing 1 to 0. There were two men on base, third and second, and two were out. A lone single meant two runs. An out meant defeat. It was a most difficult predicament.

In his previous trips to the plate Carr was unable to do anything against Trask, who up until the seventh had allowed but one hit. In this session the Americans had collected their second hit of the game. They then dug up hit safely to center field. He went to second on a sacrifice and advanced to third on a wild pitch. Mulno walked after Mulno had struck out. This was the picture with Carr standing at the bat.

Carr broke up game.

Carr showed coolness and gameness. He took two swings at the ball and hit three on by him. With the count three and two he got himself for the next pitch. It was in the groove. He brought his entire weight into a swing. His bat met the ball a second time and the horseshoe shot through the infield and into the outer garden.

as Daily and O'Connell came trailing home with the two runs when proved enough to turn apparent defeat into victory, when the Americans sent him last at bat, with the count three and two.

hits, but a couple of passes and a wild pitch gave the Americans the run that brought the deadlock. Mulno, who again opposed Trask, was touched for six hits last night, but he pulled himself together in the pinch, and with the exception of the sixth, held the Bellevues in the hollow of his hand.

Buckley Hits Triple

The Bellevues run in the sixth looked like with both teams playing superb baseball. "Ace" Buckley was first up in this session. He took a terrific cut at the ball and sent the horseshoe to the left center for a three banger. It was the longest hit of the game, and they then shot a sacrifice fly to lay in center field and Buckley slid over the plate with the first run of the game. Another hit by "Bob" Lawson followed after Lawson had fanned, but it went for naught.

Many felt that Buckley's run meant the old ball game. But the American players and fans were of a different opinion and their optimism was rewarded by the two-run rally in their half of the seventh. The Bellevues still had a chance to at least tie the count in the seventh, but here Mulno "bore down" and he retired the side in order. Thus another great game passed into history.

"Shea and Shea," Calls Ump In Announcing Batteries

MARVIN AND ELMER SHEA

By NEA Service

SACRAMENTO, Calif., July 25.—Several families consist of brothers in professional baseball.

Some of the O'Neills and Menzies, and recently the Hughes and Johnsons.

The Cleveland Indians have two brothers on the same team—the Sewells, Joe and Luke.

But the Shea family of Stockton, near here, consists of two brothers not only playing on the same club, but forming a battery.

Elmer Shea has been one of the most dependable right-handers in the Pacific Coast league in the three seasons he has been playing with Sacramento.

New his brother, Marvin, is coming up at the corner end of the battery. Taken on for a trial late last season, he is still being carried as a backstop, and as a relief catcher and batter.

Brother Marvin takes his chest protector off to go longer in Class AA baseball.

"Shea" Shea earned his nickname because he wears an even white shirt. When he has his classic look, he is still being carried as a backstop, and as a relief catcher and batter.

BAD VISION RESPONSIBLE FOR POOR GAMES

BY MIKE GRADY

Western Open Champion

Not always is it the fault of a man's stroke or any disability of his physical powers that he suddenly finds himself off color and apparently unable to get back on his regular game.

Frequently the fault is with his eyes. A majority of men have their eyes tested every so often for reading glasses, but they do not always appreciate that the eyes also have to be attended to the golf stroke and that the correction made for near-sight purposes may not suffice for the out-of-door game.

I mention this because I happen to know of the case of a man who is a very fine golfer and a grand player for one of the best clubs in the country. He has been playing for some time with a new pair of glasses, but he has found that the correction is not what he needs for the golf stroke.

He has experienced a lot of trouble with his eyes, and he has been told that he should have a new pair of glasses. He has bought a new pair, but he has found that the correction is not what he needs for the golf stroke.

IDEAL TEMPERAMENT PUT BOBBY JONES ACROSS

BY ROR GROVE

N.Y.A. Service Staff

NEW YORK, July 25.—Much is being said and written about the distant drives and accurate iron play that won Bobby Jones the highest of American golfing honors.

But there is something greater than either of these—greater, too, than the play, the manner, or the title.

And that is the golfing temperament of the aforementioned Mr. Jones.

Bobby possesses the ideal golfing confidence. It's the kind that never fails to show when a golfer is right or wrong.

"We all had a hunch that Bobby would go good this year," remarks Hickey. "We all agreed he would come out on the top when he got his temperament down to par with his golf."

Outfitted Played Dandy

"I generally takes a fellow four or five years to do it. Some men never do."

"I noticed from the start of his game there was something different about Bobby. He radiated a different atmosphere, one of even disposition, confidence and determination."

Much of the credit of keeping Jones in this condition must go to Francis Ouimet, Bobby's best friend and the only boy who can handle him properly.

It was noticeably evident Bobby was becoming nervous the night before the play. He had been through the waiting for and winning of the cup, but he was not himself. He took him by the arm and led him off to bed, caring for him tenderly throughout the night.

During the match, Ouimet kept himself constantly near and visible to Bobby.

Reverse With Pros

True enough it was the reverse of such golfing temperament which weakened the professionals. Even the renowned Walter Hagen cracked for the first time in his colorful career.

That fact became evident in the second round. He was trapped in the first hole and took a five. He was again on the fifth and took three puts on the eighth, something unforfeitable in the history of the game.

But it was on the ninth hole where the situation became too much for the master. He was on the ninth hole, to start with, and after taking three puts to get down he took the putt out of the cup and answered his brother's question by calmly heading the ball over the fence.

In the same session did the great Walter answer again to the temperament of golf by taking one better. He was on the eighth hole, and he was in a bad way. He was on the eighth hole, and he was in a bad way. He was on the eighth hole, and he was in a bad way.

Jack Always Happy

The pros all feel that Sarazen has to learn to keep fighting like Hutchison. He does not analyze his strokes on a misplay. He becomes upset in the final when he decided on an iron instead of a wood. He was on the eighth and landed out of bounds.

Barnes had some remarkable holes and some erratic.

"I didn't get the hard luck that I have had," he admits. "It serves me right for not getting a good shot out of the rough, for I didn't have any business in the rough in the first place. They won't come off for me," yelled Kirkwood as he passed Hagen on the opposite elevated fairway.

The pros are back in the wrong time for me," moaned Walter, Jack's having all the fun. "And he sure was."

Jack walked about the course in the happiest sort of mood, singing and kidding and laughing in a most unbecoming fashion, making up little remarks about the pit and the gallery. When he did get into trouble he would whistle a fast tune, grab a club and spin the strawberry dead to the stick.

It was these bits of golfing temperament which enabled Jack Hutchison and Kirkwood to bring in the record in the second round.

And it was almost deadly outlasting temperament of Bobby Jones that won the title.

SAY MANTY AND JACKS ON EDGE FOR BATTLE

With both men reported in perfect condition, a test of an extra week to train, Young Manty, N. E. feather-weight champion, and Freddy Jacks, English feather, are ready and anxious for the coming of the fight at the Moody club show in the present link tomorrow night.

The bout means much to both. Jacks, who ran out of the match last night with the fans and the state boxing commission and will work as never before in order to have the year's suspension lifted. His loss in the first round will be at the stake, more vital than ever to see to it that the delinquent boxer does not go up to his knees in the arms of the state.

Manty, naturally, was somewhat peeved at the disappointment of a week ago and he will enter the ring with a greater determination to win. He expects to land a knockout in the first round, and he will enter the ring with a greater determination to win.

A tough blow to him, one that a champion be a sectional or national title holder, does not elude. He has put in several busy days in the gymnasium and expects that he will be in the best of his form for the bout.

Jack's will regret he ever consented to swap punches with him.

Three other bouts are on the card, and when it is over, considerably comment is that between Mickey Nilon, of Forge Village and Johnny McBride of Lawrence.

Hain checks issued last week should be exchanged at the Moody club office, Harrington building, as soon as possible. Holders will pay the federal and state tax.

CRUIQU, CONFIDENT OF BEATING DUNDEE

NEW YORK, July 25.—Eugene "Cruiqu" Cruikshank, a champion of the featherweights, is ready to risk his title tomorrow night at the Polo grounds, when he meets Johnny Dundee, but he said today he didn't think the fight was very close. Both the champion and the challenger have finished their strenuous training, and claim to be within the required 125 pounds limit.

Cruiqu announced today he would sail for France on Aug. 2 to box for the benefit of his country's wounded soldiers.

A fine end of preliminaries has been arranged. Irish Johnny "Cruiqu" and Paddy Edwards will meet in the semi-final. There will also be fights between Leon Ponce of France, and Pat Mills of Ireland, and Vasiliy "Cruiqu" and Charley Glasser and Davy Jones.

LOWELL C. M. A. C. DEFEATED BY GARDNER IN STATE LEAGUE

Sam Pouliot Had One Bad Inning and His Dereliction With Poor Support Big Factor in 7 to 5 Defeat—Three Tyler Brothers Play on Local Team

The Gardner team scored enough runs in the first inning of last night's game with the Lowell C. M. A. C. to measure in the sixth and went home with an easy 7 to 5 victory. The win for the Gardner team celebrated marked their second against Lowell in three many days. Joe Lapante turning back the locals at Gardner last Sunday and Harry Carlson turning the trick last night.

Despite the low temperature and threatening clouds, the stands on the Textile campus were filled to capacity, and the crowd waited until the last man had been retired in the ninth when Lowell started a rally with a most abrupt ending. The game itself was devoid of any spectacular playing. Gardner displayed a superiority throughout, and after the opening stanza, took things comparatively easy.

Old war horse Sam Pouliot, in a game that had been sewed up by the fast-playing crew from Gardner, Tyler was in good condition and gave a good account of himself when on the hit-top. He was touched up for a double, the only bling made of his delivery, and he whiffed three batters.

Carlson showed the result of pitching experience and sent up a sweet assortment of hooks. He had a change of pace that completely fooled some of Lowell's heavy hitters. Lou, usually a pretty reliable asset with the Lowell, swung blindly at Carlson's strike outs was his meat.

In the field, George "Lefty" Tyler was the bright and particular star. On three occasions he made hairbreadth stops at the initial sack and scooped a few out of the dirt that would make George Sizer smile by comparison. Atkinson, at third, pulled down a hard fly near the third base bleachers that brought deserved applause while Atkinson, in right for the visitors, looked classy at all times.

A base on balls in the opener paved the way for the first big Gardner rally, which eventuated in five runs. After Tyler had been disposed of, Carlson, a free ticket. King advanced him with a single and the bases were loaded when St. Angelo walked. Crawford forced Christie at home. Pouliot, F. Tyler, but R. Trauske, connected for a triple and the fireworks began.

DRIVING CLUB PLANS BIG FAIR AT GOLDEN COVE

At a meeting of the Lowell Driving Club and Agricultural Society, Inc., held last night definite plans were made for the holding of a fair at Golden Cove park on the last two days of August and the first of September.

The first day will be devoted more to the agricultural side with special attractions throughout the afternoon. It is possible that a baby show and a decorated doll carriage parade may also be staged for the benefit of the little ones.

On the last two days there will be racing events that promise to be as attractive as the baby show and the decorated doll carriage parade. It is possible that a baby show and a decorated doll carriage parade may also be staged for the benefit of the little ones.

An exhibition hall is to be built immediately and at a special meeting to be held next Friday evening at the club room, the exact date will be awarded so that it can be in readiness for the opening of the fair.

This proposed exhibition hall is 33 by 72 feet and will be so arranged that an addition can readily be made at any time.

It is the wish of the committee that to work on the different matters that there will be a large turnout of the members at Friday night's meeting so that all may know exactly what is planned.
